

Mitchell And Stans Acquitted

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans were acquitted Sunday of all nine counts of criminal conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice in connection with a secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Mitchell, 60, and Stans, 66, had been jointly charged with one count of criminal conspiracy and two of obstructing justice in connection with the contribution by international financier Robert L. Vesco. Each man also was charged with six counts of perjury.

The two former Cabinet members said their acquittal vindicated their faith in the American system.

"I don't think Mr. Stans ever lost faith and I didn't," said Mitchell at a news conference after the verdict was returned in federal court. "I have great faith in America and that's why I love this country."

Earlier, he was asked if he had been confident of acquittal. "Why of course," he replied. "We've got the jury system and that always works."

Stans blinked back tears as he was declared innocent. "I've been reborn," he said.

The former commerce secretary said at the news conference: "We had great faith in a man, the President, to do everything we could to get him elected. Everything we did in that cause was proper and just."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, asked for Nixon's comment, said: "The President was very pleased for the two men and for their families."

Vesco, who is living in exile in Costa Rica after being indicted with Stans and Mitchell, called the verdict the "first fair verdict I've heard in a long time. I'm very pleased with it today."

Interviewed by CBS, Vesco said he was surprised by the verdict because "my own view has been consistently that the pretrial publicity had been so serious that that may override proper judicial process."

The U.S. District Court panel of nine men and three women deliberated 26 hours over a four-day period after getting the case at 3:55 p.m. CDT on Thursday. They returned to the courtroom during their deliberations and asked to listen again to portions of the testimony and transcript of the trial that began Feb. 19.

It was the first time in the nation's history that two Cabinet colleagues had been tried together on criminal charges connected with official or political duties and it was the first time in half a century that any Cabinet member faced criminal judgment.

Sybil Kucharski, the forewoman, said that when deliberations began, the panel was split on the conspiracy and obstruction of justice counts with five voting for conviction, five for acquittal and two undecided.

The jurors temporarily gave up trying to reach a verdict on those charges and turned to the perjury accusations, Miss Kucharski said. "After looking all through the perjury charges, the rest was easy," she added. "We figured there couldn't be any conspiracy if there was no perjury."

"We didn't feel we could find these men guilty on what we were shown," she said.

Clarence Brown, 50, a postal worker from Ossining, N.Y., said, "They (the Vesco people) wanted to get something going, but I don't think that Stans or Mitchell ever fell for it. Vesco was trying to get to any top figure to embarrass the President."

The shadow of Watergate hovered over the trial, although the Vesco matter was not directly linked to the break-in at Democratic national headquarters.

The jury devoted its attention first to Mitchell in pronouncing him innocent, count-by-count, of the indictment. When it concluded, defense attorney John Sprizzo clapped an arm around the former attorney general's neck and pulled his head onto his shoulder. Mitchell smiled broadly.

Stans was next. When the jury concluded its findings, he sank back in his chair with a visible sigh of relief. After being embraced by defense attorney Robert Barker, Stans put his head in his hands momentarily. When he lifted it, his eyes were wet with tears.

Mitchell and Stans were accused of conspiring to obstruct a massive Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation of Vesco's multi-million dollar corporate empire in return for the $200,000 1972 campaign contribution. If convicted, each could have received a maximum sentence of 45 years in prison and fines up to $80,000.

A crowd of about 100 persons greeted Mitchell and Stans with mixed cheers and jeers as they emerged from the courthouse in a downtown section of Manhattan normally deserted on a Sunday. "Hurray for American justice," cried one woman.

"There's no more America," countered another crowd member, screaming: "Scandal! Fascist!"

Mitchell still faces conspiracy, obstruction and perjury charges in Washington in connection with the Watergate coverup. His indictment there was held up until the day following the sequestration of the Stans-Mitchell trial jury here, so members of the panel would not be influenced by the Watergate action.

The jurors sent out a note at 11:50 a.m. CDT to federal judge Lee Gagliardi. It read simply: "The jury has reached its verdict."

Five minutes later, the jurors walked into the courtroom, pausing at the doorway to shake hands with court clerk James Matarese.

The first two jurors into the room, Clarence Brown, a postal employee, and Floyd Cook, Western Union messenger, looked directly at Mitchell and Stans and smiled. By courtroom tradition, such an attitude is taken to indicate a verdict favorable to a defendant.

Asst. U.S. Atty. John Wing who had conducted a vigorous prosecution was asked how he felt about the outcome.

"Rotten," said the 37-year-old prosecutor. "If we could have gotten Vesco back it would have been different. It was absolutely not a waste. When there's evidence that people committed crimes, those crimes should be investigated and prosecuted."

Vesco fled the country at the height of the SEC investigation into his affairs and has successfully resisted all legal efforts by the U.S. government to force his return. He had been indicted with Mitchell and Stans.

Miles Of Improvements Delayed

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Runaway inflation and lagging growth in gas tax revenue will mean 122.7 miles of highway improvements originally slated for fiscal 1974 will not be let for contract.

State Roads Department officials are now predicting possibly as many as 86 projects on which construction was supposed to begin by June 30 will have to be carried over into fiscal 1975.

And, since no provision for an extra 86 projects has been made in the department's fiscal 1975 budget, the inflation crunch could have a domino-like effect of pushing some 1975 projects, and possibly some 1974 projects, into the fiscal 1976 construction program.

Decision Needed
Unless the revenue-inflation picture improves, the 1975 Legislature and the newly-elected governor, whoever he is, will have to decide whether or not to get the highway construction program back on schedule.

Here is the dilemma:

On July 11, 1973, State Engineer Thomas Doyle announced a $68 million highway construction program for fiscal 1974. The program outlined 185 projects, ranging from guard rails and lighting to road widenings and resurfacings, on 579.1 miles of highway.

On April 26, 1974, in response to inquiries from The Star, the department revised those figures to show that 456.4 miles of highway improvements, involving 79 projects, will be authorized by June 30.

Federal Aid Obligated
Despite the drop in total mileage and the number of projects planned for fiscal 1974, department officials said $68.3 million in contracts will be or have been awarded in 1974. All available federal funds have been obligated, they said.

What has been dropped from the 1974 construction timetable includes:

—34 Interstate projects which the department labeled "minor." These included 12 interchange lighting projects and an undisclosed number of guard-rail and landscaping projects.

The department, however, pointed out that all of the "major" work on Interstate 80, such as paving certain stretches, is under contract and on schedule.

—An undisclosed number of projects on the state's primary and secondary highway system, including some paving, widening and bridge projects.

Charles Nutter, deputy state engineer, said the number of projects on the state highway system which have been delayed were not totaled. He mentioned delay on several paving projects in western Nebraska, but he said no major projects in the immediate Lincoln area will be delayed.

No Priority System
Nutter said there was no priority system used to determine which projects would not be let for contracts. Some projects originally planned for a contract letting early in the year will be delayed, because the department rejected bids on a number of occasions which it felt were too high, he said.

The delay has been blamed on the gasoline shortage and inflation.

For instance, in September, 1973, asphaltic cement cost the department approximately 20 cents per gallon. By February, 1974, the price had almost doubled to between 35 and 40 cents per gallon.

This forced the department to take $1.8 million from its construction funds and apply it to the maintenance program in order to meet the higher costs.

4% For Inflation
In a December, 1973, report, department controller Jack F. Pittman estimated construction costs were up 27.8% over costs for calendar 1972. This left the department short of the money needed to meet the 1974 schedule. It had based its fiscal 1974 program on 1972 costs plus a 4% inflation factor.

In addition, gasoline revenue grew by only 1.8% during the first nine months of fiscal 1974 instead of the 5.6% originally anticipated.

This lower rate of growth cost the state $1.2 million in anticipated revenue.

Team To Clear Peru Landslides

Lima, Peru (AP)—An engineering team armed with dynamite struggled through rain and mud Sunday to clear giant landslides high in the Andes of central Peru that killed 43 people, wiped out at least three villages and threatened another six with sudden extinction.

Authorities said 50 persons have been injured and another 200 were missing in the disaster in a quiet little valley some 10,000 feet above sea level.

Newsmen quoted survivors as saying three big avalanches Thursday night were preceded by a loud report, "like an explosion," followed by prolonged rumbling as part of three peaks caved into the valley.

The 100-man team was on its way to blast open a spill through the thousands of tons of rock and mud that has been blocking the Mantaro River rapids, forming an oblong lake 14 miles long and 210 feet deep.

Rescue chiefs feared another disaster if the accumulated debris suddenly crumbled under the pressure of the accumulated water. They said the floods would raze dozens of villages downstream.

"It is rising very fast. Pretty soon it will reach the danger point," an engineer in charge of communicating with rescue teams reported.

Several thousand people — mostly Indian villagers — have been evacuated from communities located downstream.

Truckers Group Willing To Strike

By DEAN TERRILL

Southeast Nebraska Bureau Grand Island — Members of the Independent Truckers of Nebraska agreed here Sunday they have "no choice" but to take part in an anticipated national trucking strike.

But at the same time, some 40 members of the new state group registered strong opposition to a "piecemeal strike." That was the term President Don Mulder of Lincoln applied to the limited shutdown of last January.

"Let's not have a situation this time with one state going one way and one the other," Mulder said. "If we have a strike, let's have one that will do some good."

It was noted that a nationwide shutdown is tentatively set for May 13. The action is being contemplated in protest of reduced highway speeds and inflated fuel prices.

The main concern of Sunday's meeting was that if a strike materializes, it should be a unanimous action.

Out Of Fear
Jim Beeton, administrative chairman of the group, said, "The last strike was so disorganized, nobody knew who to contact about anything." He said he had parked his own rig, but "only for fear of my life and equipment."

In a voice vote, the group expressed itself without dissent against striking unless the shutdown is nationwide.

Adopted was a formal resolution:

"The Independent Truckers of Nebraska are against piecemeal shutdowns of a few truckers in isolated areas. However, pending an announcement by the NTUC of a 100% nationwide shutdown, we will have no choice but to join in the shutdown."

NTUC is the National Independent Truckers Unity Committee, with which the Nebraskans voted to align themselves informally. Representing 17 other trucking organizations, the national group so far has not favored strike.

Support Pledged

The president of the Nebraska Truck Stop Operators Association, Warren Garrett of Wood River, pledged the support of his group.

"We feel we're all in the same bite, and that is survival," he said. "The truckers' greatest grievance is their feeling that nobody has paid any attention to them."

When it was noted that the Nebraska group lacked funds for incorporating, contributions of more than $150 came from those present. The association now numbers approximately 100 members.

Bob Wenzl of Grand Island was elected an area representative.

Tape Decision Pressure Mounting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secluded at his Camp David, Md., retreat, President Nixon faced mounting pressure Sunday to reverse his indicated course and surrender completely the tapes subpoenaed by the House Judiciary Committee.

The recordings are of such paramount importance, declared former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson, that they "could very well tip it one way or another," as to whether Nixon is adjudged guilty of criminal conduct.

As of now, said Richardson in a television interview, "the case is close."

White House sources have indicated in recent days that Nixon would meet the committee's Tuesday deadline with a limited, transcribed version of the tapes, wanted in the panel's unpeachment inquiry.

But that would run counter to the strongest advice of congressional Republicans, who warn it could heighten the risk of impeachment despite whatever merit might be contained in the transcriptions.

Richardson said that transcriptions would fail to meet the legal command of the subpoena. Moreover, he said, "a failure to fully meet the requests for tapes justifies an adverse inference" as to Nixon's guilt in the Watergate affair.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said on a separate interview program that even allowing selected committee members and staff to listen to the tapes would miss the mark. "they might as well go the whole way," he declared.

Javits said that if the House impeaches Nixon, the President should step aside for the duration of his trial in the Senate.

"He should invoke the 25th Amendment," said Javits. "he could give up and recapture his power, simply by his own assertion."

Nixon summoned his two top advisers to Camp David Sunday afternoon to confer on his final strategy for meeting the Tuesday deadline. After the meeting with Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, high-level White House sources said the President had reached a decision to turn over "extensive and comprehensive" material to the committee.

However, the White House would not go into detail on what material would be provided.

"The President will spell out tomorrow (Monday) how he plans to respond" to the subpoena, another White House source said.

There were reports that Nixon had decided to deliver a television speech Monday night, but the White House would say only that this step was under consideration.

The subpoena calls for delivery to the committee by 10 a.m. Tuesday of tapes and other records relating to 42 conversations between Nixon and his top aides about the time Watergate coverup was unraveling a year ago.

A battery of typists under the supervision of White House lawyer Fred Buzhardt is known to be working on the 1,600 minutes of conversation covered by the subpoena.

The committee has no objection to receiving the information in transcript form — providing it has had a part in preparing the transcripts. But it is unalterably opposed to having the White House alone screen the tapes.

Rites Take Place On A Pole

Although the vows were traditional and contained the usual promises of "I do's" — the wedding certainly wasn't the usual quiet church ceremony. John Thornton, right, and Sue Rees, left, became man and wife over the weekend while strapped to a North Des Moines telephone pole. Thornton is a foreman for a cable-television firm and poles are his way of life, he says. "so why not get married this way?" The young couple exchanged vows while magistrate Gerald Levy, back to camera, performed the ceremony from a bucket truck next to the pole.

A battery of typists under the supervision of White House lawyer Fred Buzhardt is known to be working on the 1,600 minutes of conversation covered by the subpoena.

The committee has no objection to receiving the information in transcript form — providing it has had a part in preparing the transcripts. But it is unalterably opposed to having the White House alone screen the tapes.

Rites Take Place On A Pole

Although the vows were traditional and contained the usual promises of "I do's" — the wedding certainly wasn't the usual quiet church ceremony. John Thornton, right, and Sue Rees, left, became man and wife over the weekend while strapped to a North Des Moines telephone pole. Thornton is a foreman for a cable-television firm and poles are his way of life, he says, "so why not get married this way?" The young couple exchanged vows while magistrate Gerald Levy, back to camera, performed the ceremony from a bucket truck next to the pole.

Geneva — Secretary of State Kissinger arrived here, on his way to the Middle East, to confer with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, hoping to obtain Soviet help in his efforts to persuade Israel and Syria to compromise on a troop separation agreement in the Golan Heights. He conferred with Gromyko soon after his arrival and will have another meeting with him Monday.

Portuguese Socialist Returns

Lisbon — Mario Soares, the 49-year-old leader of Portugal's Socialist Party and an opponent of the dictatorship that was overthrown last Thursday, returned to his country from a five-year exile in Paris. He was welcomed by an exuberant crowd here and then he went to see Gen. Antonio de Spínola, head of the military junta, who is likely to lead the provisional government the junta promised to form in the next three weeks.

Jets Resume
Mideast Raids

By The Associated Press

Israeli and Syrian warplanes resumed strafing and bombing the cease-fire line Sunday and gun duels continued unabated as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger embarked on his fifth mission to the Middle East. Israel, which lost 14 of its soldiers Saturday in the highest casualty toll for a single day since October, said the escalated fighting could damage Kissinger's mission.

Eight of the Israeli soldiers were killed by Syrian artillery fire. Six others died when a first time in post-October fighting. Israel said it sent its jet fighters against Syrian positions on Mt. Hermon, the strategic 9,200-foot mountain on the Syrian-Lebanese border where fighting has been centered in the past three weeks. Other Israeli fighters hit Syrian posts south of the 300-square-mile bulge Israel captured in the October war, the Israeli command said. Two Syrian jets strafed Israeli positions an hour later, Israel said, downed one Israeli jet but Israel said all its planes had returned safely.

A Syrian communique reported that artillery duels spread along the 40-mile Golan cease-fire line for the 48th straight day.

Israeli correspondents reported that Syria was apparently conceding the battle for the Hermon peak. They said Israeli air strikes and concentrated artillery fire were forcing the Syrians to abandon their forward position about 600 feet below the Israeli-held summit and their work on a road to the summit.

The Israeli press, meanwhile, expressed pessimism about Kissinger's peace mission. "The persistent, senseless shelling . . . is evidence that the Syrians are quite willing to go on fighting and are in no hurry for peace," said the Jerusalem Post. The left-wing al Hamishmar said it expected "no miracles from Kissinger this time."

Sadat Sees Success
In Kissinger Mission

NEW YORK (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt says he believes Henry A. Kissinger is "a man of miracles" and will succeed in disengaging Syrian and Israeli troops on the Golan Heights. The Egyptian president was interviewed Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program by ABC News President Elmer Lower and two correspondents. Asked how he would rate the secretary of state's chances in his current peace mission to the Middle East, Sadat said: "He's a man of miracles. I think he will be doing it again in Syria."

Sadat would not divulge what advice he had sent to Syrian President Hafez Assad in a message delivered to Damascus last week. But he said the fighting on the Golan front "could be dangerous if we don't use all our efforts from your side, from our side, from the Syrian side to try and reach this disengagement agreement." Sadat said that the United States has "the best chances in achieving peace in this area" because under the Nixon administration American policy has made a "drastic change toward peace based on justice" in the Middle East.

Several times during a one-hour interview Sadat referred to Kissinger as "my friend," "Henry" and as a worker of "miracles." He admitted that he has been warned by other Arab leaders against placing too much trust on an administration threatened at home by impeachment proceedings. And he admitted that Vice President Gerald Ford's pronouncements on the Middle East did not "encourage" him because "what he has said before has always been the old line of alignment with Israel."

Kissinger, Gromyko Confer On Middle East

Rebels Control Much Of Colony

Guinea — For 14 years, African rebels in the malaria-ridden jungle territory of Guinea-Bissau have been carrying on an armed struggle against Portuguese rule. They claim control over nearly three-fourth of the Guinea-Bissau territory, which is about the combined size of Connecticut and Massachusetts, and over more than half the population of 600,000 farmers, herdsmen and fishermen. The rebels in Portugal's two other much larger African colonies — Angola and Mozambique — make no such claims.

Mitchell, Stans Face Problems

Washington — The acquittal of John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans does not end their legal problems. Mitchell has been indicted in Washington on six other counts in the Watergate conspiracy case, and he is said to be involved in two other cases being prepared by the Watergate special prosecutor. Stans's problems are considerably less severe, but the Watergate special prosecutor reportedly is investigating whether he solicited illegal corporate contributions to Nixon's campaign.

Workers Worried About Prices

New York — Recent interviews conducted by the New York Times with workers around the country, indicate that most of them are worried about what the impact the removal of wage and price controls, due to expire at midnight Monday, will have on the already skyrocketing cost of living. Many of these workers can look forward to increases in wages and fringe benefits negotiated through collective bargaining this year, and unions, freed from the controls, are expected to push hard for substantial increases.

Nixon Appealing To Conservative Bloc

Washington — President Nixon, who was at Camp David preparing to step up his campaign against impeachment, is directing his appeal increasingly to the minority conservative bloc in the Senate. The strategy is being pursued on two levels — first, on policy and legislation, and second, on public appearances and speeches across the country.

Solidarity With Soviet Jews Shown

New York — With priests, ministers and rabbis in the vanguard, a crowd estimated by the police at more than 100,000 paraded down Fifth Avenue in demonstration of their solidarity with Soviet Jews denied the right to emigrate to Israel. The parade reached a climax when the peaceful procession of men women and children filled Dag Hammarskjold Plaza across from the United Nations.

Judges Refuse To Lift Ban
On Riotous Rock Festival

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Promoters of a two-day rock festival that drew thousands of fans lost a court fight on Sunday to overturn an injunction against continuing the concert. The festival was marred by a riot on Saturday.

Three Virginia Supreme Court justices refused to lift the injunction against the Cherry Blossom Rock Festival. The ban was imposed earlier by Judge J. Randolph Tucker.

Chief Justice Harold Snead and Justices Richard Poff and Harry Carrico said they lacked jurisdiction to lift the injunction against the festival.

Shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday, Tucker agreed with Richmond officials that the continuation of the concert threatened the health and safety of city residents and property.

By noon Sunday, the promoter, Creative Concerts Inc. of Richmond, gave up the fight and started tearing down the pavilion on which rock musicians had performed.

Some 150 youths were arrested, city vehicles were destroyed and two cars set afire Saturday in a melee that started when angry youths turned on local police, who had been making drug-related arrests in City Stadium.

Police said the youths were arrested on a variety of drug-related charges and on charges of inciting to riot.

The melee apparently was triggered by the arrest of a young girl in the upper level of the stadium.

Several youths came to the aid of the girl who reportedly was dragged screaming down the aisle by plain-clothes men of the Richmond narcotics squad.

In the disturbance that followed, irate youths hurled missiles and other debris from the stadium's upper level at policemen who were gathered in the concession area below.

No serious injuries were reported, although witnesses said both policemen and youths were seen with bloody cuts and bruises.

108 Soviets Are Killed
In Aeroflot Plane Crash

MOSCOW (AP) — All 108 persons killed in an airplane crash at Leningrad airport this weekend were Soviet citizens, authorities said Sunday.

The four-engine turboprop Ilyushin-18 crashed Saturday night just after takeoff when one of its engines apparently exploded, eyewitnesses said.

The plane, on a flight to the southern Soviet city of Krasnodar, burst into flames and crashed about a mile from the end of the runway, killing all aboard.

At least 18 Aeroflot planes are known to have crashed in the last 15 months, including the midair explosion of the super-sonic airliner TU-144 at the Paris Air Show last June.

Soviet civil aviation officials have told Western visitors that 588 persons died in Aeroflot crashes in 1973.

There was no mention of the accident in the Soviet press and Soviet officials refused comment other than to confirm the citizenship of the victims.

The Ilyushin crashed four months after the Soviet Civil Aviation Ministry complained that Aeroflot had substandard pilot training and aircraft maintenance.

The ministry said it had organized a special committee to study how flight safety could be improved.

Risky Skin Transplants
Aid Young Burn Victims

BOSTON (AP) — Some burned children who once would have faced almost certain death now are being saved with a new treatment that uses their parents' skin as bandages. The treatment purposely inhibits their ability to fight infection, one of a burn patient's deadliest foes.

The experimental technique, which has been used to treat 11 youngsters in less than two years at the Shriners Burns Institute here, is considered risky because it relies upon suppressing the body's immune system that defends against foreign bodies and disease.

But for patients who have almost no chance of survival with traditional treatments, the doctors feel the risks are acceptable.

Seven of those treated have survived, and of the four who died only one failed because of uncontrolled infection. The others died of lung difficulties because of inhalation burns to the respiratory system, doctors say.

The severe burns treatment involves skin transplant specialists, surgeons and other experts from Massachusetts General Hospital, which staffs the burns center.

Because of the risk, the doctors limit use of the technique to children who have severe burns over at least 70 to 80 per cent of their bodies.

Dr. John D. Crawford, the Shriners' chief of pediatrics, makes the final decision on whether to use the treatment. He says, however, that parents' refusals to approve the treatment or donate the skin are strictly abided by.

"All lights must be green for the treatment to go ahead," he says. "One red light, whether from donor or doctor, stops the (skin) transplant."

Temporary skin transplants from the parents or a sibling lasting up to eight weeks allow the burned child to heal and survive while doctors get enough skin from unburned parts of his body to permanently graft over the burned areas.

Previous grafts — using skin from cadavers, animals or synthetic processes or tissue-matched skin from close relatives — met with only limited success because of rejection by the body.

By suppressing the immune system, rejection is delayed and the graft of closely matched skin can "take" for up to eight weeks. This gives the doctors the extra time they need to cover the badly burned child with his own skin.

During the first three months of treatment, the burned children stay in an intensive care facility called a bacteria-controlled nursing environment. The entire treatment takes six to seven months.

Wiretaps Backed

Washington (UPI) — Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen told Congress that wiretaps are necessary to fight subversion and organized crime. He urged defeat of legislation that would impose more restrictions on electronic surveillance.

Socialist Party Leader Returns

LISBON (AP) — A tumultuous crowd chanting "Death to Political Police" welcomed back exiled Socialist leader Mario Soares on Sunday in one of the first public demonstrations permitted in Portugal in years.

Soares, who arrived from Paris, was the first politician to return from exile since the government was overthrown last Thursday.

The country's new leader, Gen. Antonio de Spínola, greeted the 49-year-old Soares at Lisbon station. The two met privately for about 20 minutes.

Soares emerged from the meeting, saying he had no personal political ambitions but added: "I have for the Socialist party."

Spínola has promised free national assembly elections within a year.

Soares spoke to the crowd, estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 persons, through a bullhorn, saying:

"The army has given people freedom of expression. But it is not the army but the workers and the people who must finish the job. It is not the time for division. People who want democracy must unite."

At a news conference later, Soares praised Spínola as "a magnificent man." He said the 64-year-old general had sent him a personally dedicated copy of his book calling for the end of military action in the Portuguese provinces.

Soares, in exile since 1970, said the Socialist party could agree to the ruling military junta's program announced two days ago but called for independence of the provinces as soon as possible.

Spínola was reported to have told political leaders in a closed door meeting Saturday that self-determination in the provinces should not be confused with independence.

Spínola and his six-man military junta lifted the last travel bans since their successful coup by opening airports Sunday to commercial air travel for the first time in three days.

Thousands of stranded tourists streamed out of the capital.

The holiday atmosphere remained. Soldiers rolled by in trucks waving bouquets of flowers thrown to them by the crowd.

The army continued a hunt for an estimated 2,000 political police reported at large. Many are believed in Portugal's three African provinces of Mozambique, Angola and Portuguese Guinea.

Newspaper accounts said more than 600 from the P.I.D.E., the secret police organization set up by former dictator Antonio Salazar, had been detained. Several were rescued by soldiers from angry mobs seeking revenge for the deaths of relatives.

An all night vigil was held in the rain by crowds near a church in downtown Lisbon where three P.I.D.E. men were reported trapped. Soldiers and sailors, armed with automatic weapons, kept sights trained on the church.

Wage-Price Debate On Senate Agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major tax and energy bills await House action this week, while the Senate is set to debate wage-price controls.

Legislation authorizing another year of life for wage-price controls is scheduled to be introduced in the Senate Monday by several senators, and a vote is expected later in the week. The controls expire at midnight Tuesday under present law.

The House Ways and Means Committee plans to act on a bill which would boost oil industry taxes by $16 billion over six years, mainly by imposing a temporary new excise tax on wind-fall profits and by phasing out the oil depletion allowance.

The committee also is expected to begin work on some more general tax reform proposals and probably will produce a somewhat limited package of various revisions. However, this generally is not expected to include a $5.9 billion personal income tax cut suggested by some senators.

In the Senate, sponsors of the wage-price control bill conceded that opposition from both labor and business will make it an uphill battle. Republicans and Democrats are accusing one another of playing politics on the issue.

In addition, the Senate is expected to vote this week on no-fault automobile insurance legislation, under which accident victims would be paid by their own insurance company regardless of who is at fault. The House, meantime, is scheduled to vote on three major energy measures:

— A special appropriations bill providing nearly $2.27 billion for spending on energy research and development activity during the fiscal year starting July 1.

— A bill creating, for two years, a Federal Energy Administration to deal with the nation's energy shortages.

— An energy supply and environmental coordination bill, giving automakers a one-year and possibly two-year delay in meeting exhaust deadlines and allowing temporary suspensions of clean-air requirements so power plants can switch from oil to coal.

In addition, the House is scheduled to vote on:

— A funding resolution which the Judiciary Committee is asking for $979,000 to carry out its regular duties and presidential impeachment inquiry this year. That would be in addition to $497,000 left over from last year. The committee has budgeted $733,759 for impeachment and $737,773 for its regular functions for this session.

Kansas City Teachers Ratify Pact

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Striking public school teachers Sunday ratified a tentative agreement between the Kansas City local of the American Federation of Teachers and the Kansas City Board of Education at the apparent end of a month and a half strike.

The vote by some 1,700

teachers, meeting at a downtown hotel, indicated about 95% approval of the pact.

The school board, which set a meeting for Sunday night, had continued with plans to reopen schools, anticipating an affirmative vote.

The tentative agreement to end the six-week strike included a 8% salary increase for teachers and paraprofessionals, with an additional 2% increase if a $1.25 school levy vote June 11 is successful.

Segretti: White House Tried To Influence Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Dirty trickster Donald Segretti says there apparently was a White House attempt to influence his case prior to his indictment but he wasn't aware of it until much later.

Segretti, who was involved in political sabotage of Democratic presidential candidates and served a jail term for his illegal campaign activities, commented in a taped interview with CBS newsmen Mike Wallace aired Sunday night on the "60 Minutes Show."

Segretti also said he was informed that a reporter for the New York Times was given copies of raw FBI files on him "to show the press and the world that they had investigated me thoroughly."

And he related that once when he asked his "paymaster," President Nixon's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, for $5,000 in cash in a brown envelope, saying: "Here's 25, be careful with it."

He said Kalmbach had told him that instead of giving him checks for his campaign dirty tricks, "he wished to switch to green."

Segretti said: "Perhaps it would have been better for me to perhaps come out very early in the ball game and say, all right, this is what happened." But he said he was advised against it by an attorney whom John Dean, then White House counsel, referred him to.

Segretti said he gave the attorney full details of his activities, and months later was told by his lawyer that notes on his activities "were Xeroxed and sent on to the White House."

In reply to a question, Segretti said he supposed the material went to Dean. Asked if he knew why, Segretti replied:

"I think we can only guess on that. My guess is that he (his attorney) did not have my interest entirely at heart."

Segretti said he felt the White House was "able to pull some strings at the Justice Department." About Justice, he said:

"My impression was, from talking to them and my testimony before the grand jury, from the questions that they asked me, was that there was something going on behind the scenes. And they were not playing it straight down the middle."

Dean about his grand jury appearance and what he should do if they asked him about Kalmbach, Dwight Chapin and Gordon Strachan, whom he considered his superiors.

"John told me at that point not to be greatly concerned," Segretti said, "that the grand jury was investigating the Watergate burglary, they were not investigating me."

"John told me that he would contact Henry Peterson (assistant attorney general) and to try and put some perimeters on the area of inquiry to me."

Segretti said that Earl Silbert of the Justice Department, in questioning him before the grand jury, referred to Kalmbach only as "Mr. K." and it was a grand juror who elicited Kalmbach's name.

"But to be fair to Mr. Silbert, perhaps Mr. Silbert did not know the full story at that — at that point in time. So I don't think it would be fair to go after Mr. Silbert and put a black hat on him completely," Segretti added.

Stranded Brazilians Await Rescuers' Aid

FORTALEZA, Brazil (AP) — Rescue helicopters were unable to land Sunday in the northeastern state of Ceara where more than 5,000 persons are stranded by floods.

The community of Aracati was partially submerged, and state officials ordered that all its inhabitants be evacuated to a safer area.

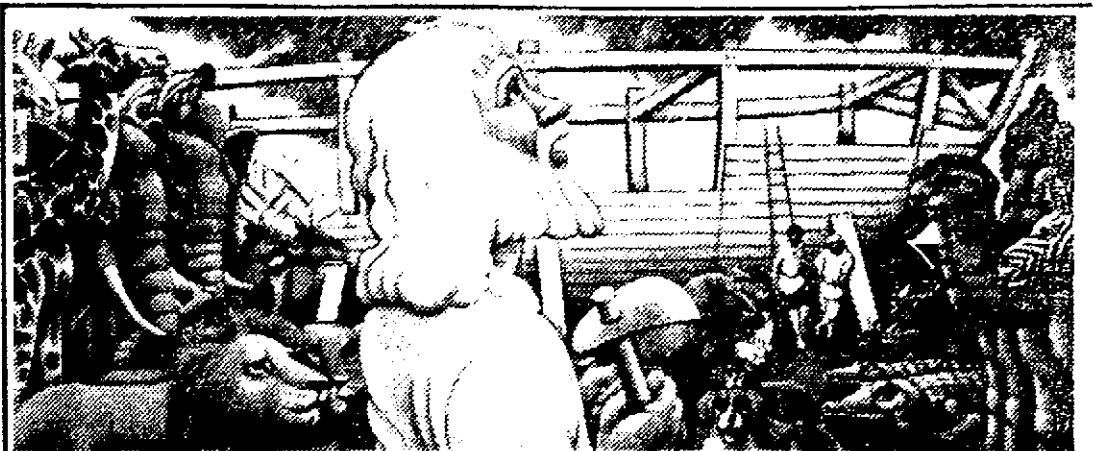

Although the rain was reported to be decreasing, authorities feared that swollen rivers might wipe out several small communities.

Many crops have been destroyed by the floods.

Despite the forced suspension of the rescue operation Sunday, the Interior Ministry reported that 45 tons of food, 20 tons of clothes, 250,000 doses of vaccines and 800,000 tents already had been distributed in the disaster area. An emergency hospital was set up in Aracati.

Socialist Party Leader Returns

LISBON (AP) — A tumultuous crowd chanting "Death to Political Police" welcomed back exiled Socialist leader Mario Soares on Sunday in one of the first public demonstrations permitted in Portugal in years.

Soares, who arrived from Paris, was the first politician to return from exile since the government was overthrown last Thursday.

The country's new leader, Gen. Antonio de Spínola, greeted the 49-year-old Soares at Lisbon station. The two met privately for about 20 minutes.

Soares emerged from the meeting, saying he had no personal political ambitions but added: "I have for the Socialist party."

Spínola has promised free national assembly elections within a year.

Soares spoke to the crowd, estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 persons, through a bullhorn, saying:

"The army has given people freedom of expression. But it is not the army but the workers and the people who must finish the job. It is not the time for division. People who want democracy must unite."

At a news conference later, Soares praised Spínola as "a magnificent man." He said the 64-year-old general had sent him a personally dedicated copy of his book calling for the end of military action in the Portuguese provinces.

Soares, in exile since 1970, said the Socialist party could agree to the ruling military junta's program announced two days ago but called for independence of the provinces as soon as possible.

Spínola was reported to have told political leaders in a closed door meeting Saturday that self-determination in the provinces should not be confused with independence.

Spínola and his six-man military junta lifted the last travel bans since their successful coup by opening airports Sunday to commercial air travel for the first time in three days.

Thousands of stranded tourists streamed out of the capital.

The holiday atmosphere remained. Soldiers rolled by in trucks waving bouquets of flowers thrown to them by the crowd.

The army continued a hunt for an estimated 2,000 political police reported at large. Many are believed in Portugal's three African provinces of Mozambique, Angola and Portuguese Guinea.

Newspaper accounts said more than 600 from the P.I.D.E., the secret police organization set up by former dictator Antonio Salazar, had been detained. Several were rescued by soldiers from angry mobs seeking revenge for the deaths of relatives.

An all night vigil was held in the rain by crowds near a church in downtown Lisbon where three P.I.D.E. men were reported trapped. Soldiers and sailors, armed with automatic weapons, kept sights trained on the church.

Wage-Price Debate On Senate Agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major tax and energy bills await House action this week, while the Senate is set to debate wage-price controls.

Legislation authorizing another year of life for wage-price controls is scheduled to be introduced in the Senate Monday by several senators, and a vote is expected later in the week. The controls expire at midnight Tuesday under present law.

The House Ways and Means Committee plans to act on a bill which would boost oil industry taxes by $16 billion over six years, mainly by imposing a temporary new excise tax on windfall profits and by phasing out the oil depletion allowance.

The committee also is expected to begin work on some more general tax reform proposals and probably will produce a somewhat limited package of various revisions. However, this generally is not expected to include a $5.9 billion personal income tax cut suggested by some senators.

In the Senate, sponsors of the wage-price control bill conceded that opposition from both labor and business will make it an uphill battle. Republicans and Democrats are accusing one another of playing politics on the issue.

In addition, the Senate is expected to vote this week on no-fault automobile insurance legislation, under which accident victims would be paid by their own insurance company regardless of who is at fault. The House, meantime, is scheduled to vote on three major energy measures:

— A special appropriations bill providing nearly $2.27 billion for spending on energy research and development activity during the fiscal year starting July 1.

— A bill creating, for two years, a Federal Energy Administration to deal with the nation's energy shortages.

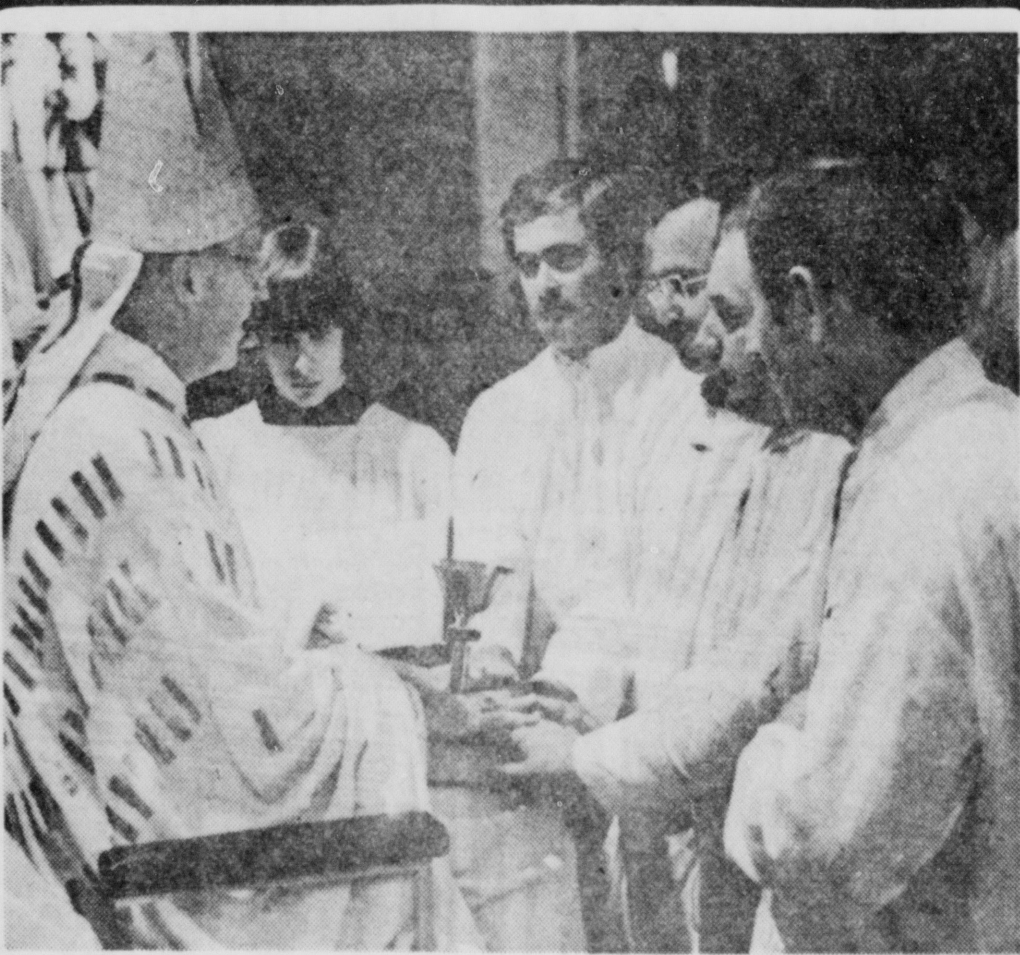

— An energy supply and environmental coordination bill, giving automakers a one-year and possibly two-year delay in meeting exhaust deadlines and allowing temporary suspensions of clean-air requirements so power plants can switch from oil to coal.

In addition, the House is scheduled to vote on:

— A funding resolution which the Judiciary Committee is asking for $979,000 to carry out its regular duties and presidential impeachment inquiry this year. That would be in addition to $497,000 left over from last year. The committee has budgeted $733,759 for impeachment and $737,773 for its regular functions for this session.

Mayor Mum On Campaign Funds

Mayor Schwartzkopf last week was asked in a letter to make public all contributions of $100 or more which were given to his 1967 and 1971 campaigns for office. The mayor's initial reaction, not surprisingly, was negative.

"Lincoln citizens are asking . . ." said the three University of Nebraska faculty members signing the letter, "what, if any, are the ties between City Hall, road construction people and land speculators?"

An accompanying leaflet raised questions about land transactions along the route of the proposed Northeast Radial between the city and the Abel Construction Co. of Lincoln.

By disclosing his campaign contributions of $100 or more the mayor "could assume the lead in laying to rest the doubts and cynicism felt by a sizable segment of our Lincoln citizenry," the letter said.

The mayor last Friday noted that all his campaign expenditures are on file as required by law and that anyone who is interested can look up that information for himself. But, the mayor observed, he is not required by law to report his campaign contributions and at this point he said he is not inclined to do so.

The mayor's position is of course

protected by the absence of any requirement to report campaign contributions. He may also feel that he was unjustly singled out as the only elected City Hall official who was asked to publicize the roster of his major campaign contributors. Further, he may not have taken contributions from anyone having anything to do with property transactions in the Northeast Radial corridor, but nevertheless feels that it's nobody's business who supported him in the past. He may not want to break confidence with contributors who may have conditioned their support on keeping it quiet. Similar reasons govern the conduct of a multitude of officials.

And that conduct, unfortunately for the politicians and the public alike, is part of the reason for the mess government and politics are in today. People saw the abuse caused by unaccounted-for money in the 1972 scandals and they question every elected official at every level. And those officials can learn by the President's example. Guilty or not, he is now almost ruined by his obsession with secrecy.

It's a long way from Washington to Lincoln, but people still cry for fresh air here. The mayor can dispel doubt and help himself in the process if he opens the books. If he doesn't, he only invites doubt.

'... And You Won't Believe 1980!'

President Nixon may find that his fledgling strategy aimed at restoring confidence in his stewardship and warding off impeachment is shallow and unconvincing.

The cornerstone of the strategy is to pick a friendly crowd and dish out pabulum.

Last week the President zipped in and out of the south in a rare burst of public exposure. At Jackson, Miss., in the heart of Nixon country (Mississippi led all states with 78% support for the President in 1972), Nixon addressed a ticket-only crowd about the future of the economy. Not a word was mentioned about the unmentionable.

While the present year "is not our best" because of inflation, Nixon acknowledged, he said he could "flatly predict '75 will be a very good year." And 1976, he said, "will be the best year in

Kissinger-Jackson Row

WASHINGTON — In the present poisonous atmosphere of suspicion in Washington, there is very little confidence in the good faith of anybody in the White House, the Congress or the press.

The suspicion is often justified, but there is an element of tragedy in all this, for the atmosphere of doubt in Washington is now beginning to spread beyond Watergate and politics to policy, not only to the President and the cast of characters in the political scandals who are the men of the past, but to people like Jackson and Kissinger, who may have more to say about the future and the policy of arms control than anybody else.

The main thing about this is that Kissinger and Jackson are now involved in a public row about the control of nuclear weapons, and how this fundamental question should be negotiated with the Soviet Union, but have never really talked out their differences in private before they differed with one another in public.

This is very odd. They are both intelligent and knowledgeable men, and know that the control of arms has reached a critical point with Moscow. Jackson wants a comprehensive agreement with the Soviets on arms control, which Kissinger also wants but thinks he cannot get.

Therefore, Kissinger is willing to do the best he can to keep the talks going. What, he asks, if we added to all our present difficulties at home and the Middle East, the demands of Senator Jackson and a return to the confrontations of the cold war. Why argue about the number of missiles? People are killed by nuclear warheads and not by the missiles themselves. So we have to avoid 20,000 missiles with multiple warheads by the end of the seventies, and slow down the arms race as best we can.

Jackson insists that we draw the line with the Soviet Union now — force an agreement for a major reduction of arms, demand that the Soviet Union agree to the emigration of 100,000 Soviet citizens a year. And not only the aggrieved Jews but the dissidents from the Ukraine and the Baltic states and the other Soviet nationalities as well.

Now is the time, Jackson says, to be tough. Now is the time, says Kissinger, to be careful.

Jackson is now charging in public that the President and the secretary of state are rushing into a compromise arms agreement because the President is in trouble at home and needs to give the impression of an agreement with the Soviet Union on arms, even if, as Jackson believes, it is a fake.

The administration denies this in public and suggests in private that Jackson is really running for president on an anti-Soviet, pro-labor and pro Israel platform. Probably there is some truth in this both ways, but not much.

What is intolerable is that they do not discuss their honest differences. After all, Kissinger's success rests on the fact that, as an outsider he won the confidence of Richard Nixon, Chou en-Lai in China, of President Sadat in Egypt, Golda Meir in Israel, and the elders of the Congress of the United States.

It is odd that he has not managed to do the same with Jackson, who in the end is not likely to reach the White House by arguing for a return to the confrontations of the cold war.

JACK ANDERSON

Now, New Record Rip-Off

WASHINGTON — In a series of columns two years ago we exposed a payola scandal in the billion-dollar record industry involving payoffs in drugs, women and old-fashioned cash. Our stories resulted in a Federal Communications Commission investigation and clean-up.

Now a new if less spectacular outrage needs to be aired. It's the way America's record industry is ripping off the performers who make the hits.

Gullible teen-agers imagine their rock'n'pop stars are glamorous figures, reaping fortunes from the $5.98 "albums" and cheaper "singles."

And a few superstars like Bob Dylan, the Rolling Stones and Neil Diamond are doing all right, thank you. They have the clout to demand and get Fair pay for their frenetic work. Some of them also make a fortune on public appearances, T-shirts and posters.

But for many new hit artists, all they net on a gaudy $5.98 album is a paltry 15 cents. The rest goes to companies, distributors, stores, agents, managers, lawyers, studios and, to some extent, corrupt radio station music directors and disc jockeys.

Record industry insiders have confided to us how the squeeze play works, eroding the performers' profits down to nickels and dimes.

A typical album lists for $5.98 although it often retails for far less. The record company sells it to a distributor for about $2.90, who sells it to the retailer for $3.05 to $3.10.

Out of the record company's $2.40 comes about 50 cents for the album cover. The company also must pay for pressing the disc, plus overhead costs and a payment to the artist pension fund. Last comes the artist's cut.

This is where the sad music begins. Although a few superstars get as high as one dollar out of the company's $2.40, many get less than 15 cents. The cut depends on the generosity of the company and the demand for the performer.

The poor performer, however, doesn't pocket his entire share. His agent takes 10%. His manager gets another 15%. The recording studio gets $110 an hour. Since cutting a record may require eight hours per song, or more, with special effects using up extra hours, the artist can be in hock for $50,000 before his song even gets into production.

Special album art or gimmickry — one album was sold in a zippered cover — escalates the cost. Special promotions drive it still higher. So do the artists' lawyers.

Position Of Moral Leadership

MARQUIS CHILDS

As Watergate Goes On

WASHINGTON — The massive process of the Watergate prosecution moves on with no end in sight. Important indictments are still to come involving the milk fund, ITT and illegal campaign contributions tied to ambassadors and other anticipated rewards.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski is proceeding without fear or favor with the able legal staff largely inherited from Archibald Cox when he went with Attorney General Elliot Richardson in the infamous Saturday night massacre.

The sequence of the trials extends further into the future than Jaworski had contemplated since his goal is to finish the job as expeditiously as possible and return to his law practice in Texas.

The special prosecutor has his own tape deadline with the White House. He set May 2 as the date for response by the President to his request for 46 tapes as well as documents and transcripts essential for the trials to come.

If the President and his lawyer, James St. Clair, refuse to comply or if they reply only in part at their own discretion, Jaworski will take the matter to the courts. In the showdown it is likely to go to the Supreme Court.

The legal base is stronger than if the material were being subpoenaed for a grand jury. Under a decision repeatedly upheld by the Supreme Court, any person must yield what is considered evidence necessary for the defense in a criminal trial.

If the evidence is withheld, defense lawyers can move for dismissal on the ground it was essential to prove their client innocent. Charles W. Colson, one of the seven White House advisers indicted on March 1, is moving in that direction with a call for White House tapes which, if refused, will be reason to argue for dismissal of the conspiracy charge.

Colson with H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell are the key to the Watergate prosecution. The others are supernumeraries and it is not excluded that plea bargaining may reduce the number of defendants.

The March 1 indictment is the second for Mitchell, once Nixon's closest adviser and friend. He has been on trial in New York for 10 weeks on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice.

The 46 tapes subpoenaed by Jaworski cover 64 separate conversations between Nixon and members of his staff over the year ending June, 1973. Jaworski believes that every aspect of Watergate and the related scandals are discussed on these tapes.

At the direction of the special prosecutor's office, the trial of the seven has been put over until September. This was done to be sure that the question of the subpoenas could be cleared through the courts before the trial starts. Further delays are almost certain to result from defense motions with the possibility that the defendants may ask to be tried separately.

The trial of the seven will take many weeks, if not months. On June 17 six defendants are to go on trial in Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's court for breaking into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The principals are Ehrlichman and Colson, together with G. Gordon Liddy and three Cuban-Americans involved in the Watergate break-in. That trial is expected to last seven weeks.

The litigation clearly will go on well into the congressional campaign and perhaps beyond. But the system is working both in the prosecution and in the courts. That is the heartening aspect of this long-drawn-out ordeal.

The trial of Dwight L. Chapin, the President's former appointments secretary, was a model of decorum. Convicted on two counts of lying to a federal grand jury, both Chapin and his lawyer thanked Judge Gesell for his conduct of the case. Gesell had thrown out one count of the four-count indictment and the jury found Chapin innocent on another count.

With diminishing returns as the trials are completed, the special prosecutor's office could become an adjunct of the Department of Justice. That is not likely to happen so long as William B. Saxbe is attorney general. His record of foot-in-mouth is unparalleled.

The wheels of the law turn relentlessly. The process, it is now clear, is irreversible.

How can I deny the requests any longer?
It came pouring in not long ago, praying for a poem.
I guess it all started with the epic, "Autumn," written some years ago and repeated almost every September.
"Fall," it goes, "is the best of all."

Then there was the classic, "Goodbye Hotel Lincoln . . . slowly you are sinkin' . . . no longer fancy free . . . you are now debris."

That one, of course, continued at some length and forced me into a brief unscheduled exile.

Somewhere, in the recesses of a troubled mind, the verses to a sequel are forming. It will, of course, be called "Hello Hotel Hilton."

But how about just a brief poem now to celebrate the coming of May . . . like on Wednesday.

"Hello, May. How ya' been?
"Bright or fresh is your synonym.
"Strange events you will host —
"Like politics, full of boast,
"Even football, you will toast,
"Law Day too, and Lenin's ghost.
"C'mon, May, be our pal;
"We know you're permissive,
"Or you'd be called Shall."

With just a couple of weeks to go before the primary election, that hot little battle for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor deserves a closer look.

More — much more — is at stake than merely the name of Jim Exon's running mate in November.

The result of that contest will not only affect the general election of 1974, but it could be a major factor in the elections of 1976 and 1978.

Exon's future political options may be determined by the outcome of that struggle. Roman Hruska's future could be affected. And the short-term health of both the Democratic and Republican Parties may be on the line.

Aw, that's overstating it. But is it?
In choosing Gerald Whelan as his preferred running mate, Exon also chose him as his preferred gubernatorial successor.

That is, the governor told an educational television news panel last week, he would like to see Whelan succeed him after a second four-year term, assuming both are elected this autumn.

It isn't politic for Exon to talk about it now, but there is another option available to him if Whelan is his lieutenant governor, one which he might not consider, at all — or which might not be politically available — if Terry Carpenter or Jules Burbach or Frank Lewis were lieutenant governor.

More so with Terry, of course. It's always "more so" with Terry.

The option, of course, is a Senate race at mid-term in 1976 if Exon is re-elected in November.

Traffic Almost Non-Existent

Lincoln, Neb.
The news media and statisticians are claiming highway traffic deaths are down due to lower speed limits. I can't believe that those newsmen ever drive the highways daily as my family does, coast to coast and border to border, about 60,000 miles a year.

Highway deaths are down due to less traffic and high-priced gas — 70¢ a gallon in some places. Or drivers are staying home for fear of not getting gas, at all.

Anyone not believing this should come out on the road and take a look. These past five months there has been no traffic to speak of unless you are near a city, and then it's drinking drivers.

As to speed, just pull your car amidst a convoy of trucks going across country and buzz along at 65 to 75 mph. With two-way radios, everyone knows where the patrolmen are and the price of gas and food at each stop.

There's no gas shortage — just big business profiteering by the oil industry. They now have an 85% mark-up of clear profit, since they created the fuel crisis scare and squeezed the little companies out.

Terry Carpenter's Campaign

Blair, Neb.
Lincoln, Nebraska is an above average, beautiful, modern progressive and somewhat exemplary establishment, hopefully enlightened, generally well educated and knowledgeable. With this feeling of pride in a city and a people, I am both puzzled and somewhat shocked to learn that a person like Senator Terry Carpenter, a demagogue of the first water, an on-again-off-again partisan who changes political parties like he changes suits, a man who has been on all sides of all issues almost all the time, would be high in the polls in his boastful effort to become our next lieutenant governor, as a Democrat and on the coattails of a popular Democratic governor.

Lincoln voters know Terry Carpenter better than anyone else. They know he is past years of age, that he would be a few heartbeats away from being governor of Nebraska, as lieutenant governor, and that if this were to happen, he could create havoc as administrative head of this great state.

Indian Cave State Park

Lincoln, Neb.
I would like to commend the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission on its actions to humanize Indian Cave State Park. It's refreshing to know that the commission is willing to spend $600,000 of its hard-earned budget money on an approximate three-mile stretch of roadway along the ridge line of the park.

Admittedly, since the proposed roadway splits the park in half, the ecology will be disrupted. But what's the death of considerable flora, fewer deer and the partial elimination of the capabilities for the wildlife to obtain water from the Missouri River?

I am grateful to know that when I become rich and famous, I will be able to cruise my 20-foot motor home anywhere in the park — that is, if I wanted to be rich and famous. To me, that is not really getting back to nature. Is a park a place to look at automobiles as they criss-cross the once beautiful countryside?

Indian Cave was the only state park in Nebraska where one could truly hike through the scenic forests and river bluffs. I guess that's another reason why I, like so many others my own age, will seriously consider moving to another state after I graduate from college next year.

That's Hruska's seat, and a re-elected popular governor running against a Republican incumbent who had trouble the last time out, and who may be damaged by his close relationship with President Nixon, just might be able to pull off the first Democratic Senate victory in Nebraska in 42 years.

That would elevate Whelan to the governorship, and pave the way for him to seek a gubernatorial term of his own as an incumbent in 1978.

If Exon sought the Senate seat and lost, Whelan would still be in position to claim the Democratic gubernatorial nomination — not perhaps without a fight — in 1978, presumably with Exon's backing.

And Exon, still the incumbent governor, could take a crack at the Senate seat held by Carl Curtis, who also had trouble his last time at the polls.

So what if it isn't Whelan?
Then, Exon might choose either not to seek a Senate seat in 1976, or he might be less able to win it if he tried.

Carpenter, in particular, has both cheering fans and jeering detractors. If Exon's election to the Senate would automatically elevate Carpenter to the governorship, Terry would immediately become a central issue in a 1976 Senate race.

Exon might just forego that battle.
As for 1978, the governor would have no chosen successor available — unless he tapped a new one or tried to retrieve Whelan. Terry would be 78; Burbach would be 66; Lewis, whose 1974 chances appear somewhat remote, would be 39.

Now, it could be that any one of them might develop a working relationship with the governor satisfactory to both.

Exon sort of indicated on ETV last week that such a relationship could be worked out with either Burbach or Lewis. He was less sure of Carpenter because, he said, Terry doesn't like to "play second fiddle" to anyone.

In any event, the line of succession would be up for grabs in 1978.

The fact is that any one of the four candidates is capable of serving either as lieutenant governor or governor. But it would be a different ball game with each lineup.

Clearly, there are more pitchers than catchers in this race. And, understandably, Exon wants to do the pitching for awhile.

Anyway, whether they fully realize it or not, Democratic voters in two weeks are going to write the short-term future history of their party.

If Exon is re-elected in November, their decision will continue to shape events in the following two election years.

But if Dick Marvel wins in November, he will render the entire scenario meaningless. Then, the Democratic primary decision may have had an effect in the 1974 elections, but 1976 and 1978 would be shrouded in decisions yet to come.

Mayor Mum On Campaign Funds

Mayor Schwartzkopf last week was asked in a letter to make public all contributions of $100 or more which were given to his 1967 and 1971 campaigns for office. The mayor's initial reaction, not surprisingly, was negative.

"Lincoln citizens are asking . . ." said the three University of Nebraska faculty members signing the letter, "what, if any, are the ties between City Hall, road construction people and land speculators?"

An accompanying leaflet raised questions about land transactions along the route of the proposed Northeast Radial between the city and the Abel Construction Co. of Lincoln.

By disclosing his campaign contributions of $100 or more the mayor "could assume the lead in laying to rest the doubts and cynicism felt by a sizable segment of our Lincoln citizenry," the letter said.

The mayor last Friday noted that all his campaign expenditures are on file as required by law and that anyone who is interested can look up that information for himself. But, the mayor observed, he is not required by law to report his campaign contributions and at this point he said he is not inclined to do so.

The mayor's position is of course

protected by the absence of any requirement to report campaign contributions. He may also feel that he was unjustly singled out as the only elected City Hall official who was asked to publicize the roster of his major campaign contributors. Further, he may not have taken contributions from anyone having anything to do with property transactions in the Northeast Radial corridor, but nevertheless feels that it's nobody's business who supported him in the past. He may not want to break confidence with contributors who may have conditioned their support on keeping it quiet. Similar reasons govern the conduct of a multitude of officials.

And that conduct, unfortunately for the politicians and the public alike, is part of the reason for the mess government and politics are in today. People saw the abuse caused by unaccounted-for money in the 1972 scandals and they question every elected official at every level. And those officials can learn by the President's example. Guilty or not, he is now almost ruined by his obsession with secrecy.

It's a long way from Washington to Lincoln, but people still cry for fresh air here. The mayor can dispel doubt and help himself in the process if he opens the books. If he doesn't, he only invites doubt.

'... And You Won't Believe 1980!'

President Nixon may find that his fledgling strategy aimed at restoring confidence in his stewardship and warding off impeachment is shallow and unconvincing.

The cornerstone of the strategy is to pick a friendly crowd and dish out pabulum.

Last week the President zipped in and out of the south in a rare burst of public exposure. At Jackson, Miss., in the heart of Nixon country (Mississippi led all states with 78% support for the President in 1972), Nixon addressed a ticket-only crowd about the future of the economy. Not a word was mentioned about the unmentionable.

While the present year "is not our best" because of inflation, Nixon acknowledged, he said he could "flatly predict '75 will be a very good year." And 1976, he said, "will be the best year in

Kissinger-Jackson Row

WASHINGTON — In the present poisonous atmosphere of suspicion in Washington, there is very little confidence in the good faith of anybody in the White House, the Congress or the press.

The suspicion is often justified, but there is an element of tragedy in all this, for the atmosphere of doubt in Washington is now beginning to spread beyond Watergate and politics to policy, not only to the President and the cast of characters in the political scandals who are the men of the past, but to people like Jackson and Kissinger, who may have more to say about the future and the policy of arms control than anybody else.

The main thing about this is that Kissinger and Jackson are now involved in a public row about the control of nuclear weapons, and how this fundamental question should be negotiated with the Soviet Union, but have never really talked out their differences in private before they differed with one another in public.

This is very odd. They are both intelligent and knowledgeable men, and know that the control of arms has reached a critical point with Moscow. Jackson wants a comprehensive agreement with the Soviets on arms control, which Kissinger also wants but thinks he cannot get.

Therefore, Kissinger is willing to do the best he can to keep the talks going. What, he asks, if we added to all our present difficulties at home and the Middle East, the demands of Senator Jackson and a return to the confrontations of the cold war. Why argue about the number of missiles? People are killed by nuclear warheads and not by the missiles themselves, so we have to avoid 20,000 missiles with multiple warheads by the end of the seventies, and slow down the arms race as best we can.

Jackson insists that we draw the line with the Soviet Union now — force an agreement for a major reduction of arms, demand that the Soviet Union agree to the emigration of 100,000 Soviet citizens a year. And not only the aggrieved Jews but the dissidents from the Ukraine and the Baltic states and the other Soviet nationalities as well.

Now is the time, Jackson says, to be tough. Now is the time, says Kissinger, to be careful.

Jackson is now charging in public that the President and the secretary of state are rushing into a compromise arms agreement because the President is in trouble at home and needs to give the impression of an agreement with the Soviet Union on arms, even if, as Jackson believes, it is a fake.

The administration denies this in public and suggests in private that Jackson is really running for president on an anti-Soviet, pro-labor and pro Israel platform. Probably there is some truth in this both ways, but not much.

What is intolerable is that they do not discuss their honest differences. After all, Kissinger's success rests on the fact that, as an outsider he won the confidence of Richard Nixon, Chou en-Lai in China, of President Sadat in Egypt, Golda Meir in Israel, and the elders of the Congress of the United States.

It is odd that he has not managed to do the same with Jackson, who in the end is not likely to reach the White House by arguing for a return to the confrontations of the cold war.

Now, New Record Rip-Off

WASHINGTON — In a series of columns two years ago, we exposed a payola scandal in the billion-dollar record industry involving payoffs in drugs, women and old-fashioned cash. Our stories resulted in a Federal Communications Commission investigation and clean-up.

Now a new if less spectacular outrage needs to be aired. It's the way America's record industry is ripping off the performers who make the hits.

Gullible teen-agers imagine their rock'n, pop stars are glamorous figures, reaping fortunes from the $5.98 "albums" and cheaper "singles."

And a few superstars like Bob Dylan, the Rolling Stones and Neil Diamond are doing all right, thank you. They have the clout to demand and get.

Fair pay for their frenetic work. Some of them also make a fortune on public appearances, T-shirts and posters.

But for many new hit artists, all they net on a gaudy $5.98 album is a paltry 15 cents. The rest goes to companies, distributors, stores, agents, managers, lawyers, studios and, to some extent, corrupt radio station music directors and disc jockeys.

Record industry insiders have confided to us how the squeeze play works, eroding the performers' profits down to nickels and dimes.

A typical album lists for $5.98 although it often retails for far less. The record company sells it to a distributor for about $2.90, who sells it to the retailer for $3.05 to $3.10.

Out of the record company's $2.40 comes about 50 cents for the album cover. The company also must pay for pressing the disc, plus overhead costs and a payment to the artist pension fund. Last comes the artist's cut.

This is where the sad music begins. Although a few superstars get as high as one dollar out of the company's $2.40, many get less than 15 cents. The cut depends on the generosity of the company and the demand for the performer.

The poor performer, however, doesn't pocket his entire share. His agent takes 10%. His manager gets another 15%. The recording studio gets $110 an hour. Since cutting a record may require eight hours per song, or more, with special effects using up extra hours, the artist can be in hock for $50,000 before his song even gets into production.

Special album art or gimmicks — one album was sold in a zippered cover — escalates the cost. Special promotions drive it still higher. So do the artists' lawyers.

As Watergate Goes On

WASHINGTON — The massive process of the Watergate prosecution moves on with no end in sight. Important indictments are still to come involving the milk fund, ITT and illegal campaign contributions tied to ambassadors and other anticipated rewards.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski is proceeding without fear or favor with the able legal staff largely inherited from Archibald Cox when he went with Attorney General Eliot Richardson in the infamous Saturday night massacre.

The sequence of the trials extends further into the future than Jaworski had contemplated since his goal is to finish the job as expeditiously as possible and return to his law practice in Texas.

The special prosecutor has his own tape deadline with the White House. He set May 2 as the date for response by the President to his request for 46 tapes as well as documents and transcripts essential for the trials to come.

If the President and his lawyer, James St. Clair, refuse to comply or if they reply only in part at their own discretion, Jaworski will take the matter to the courts. In the showdown it is likely to go to the Supreme Court.

The legal base is stronger than if the material were being subpoenaed for a grand jury. Under a decision repeatedly upheld by the Supreme Court, any person must yield what is considered evidence necessary for the defense in a criminal trial.

If the evidence is withheld, defense lawyers can move for dismissal on the ground it was essential to prove their client innocent. Charles W. Colson, one of the seven White House advisers indicted on March 1, is moving in that direction with a call for White House tapes which, if refused, will be reason to argue for dismissal of the conspiracy charge.

Colson with H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell are the key to the Watergate prosecution. The others are supernumeraries and it is not excluded that plea bargaining may reduce the number of defendants.

The March 1 indictment is the second for Mitchell, once Nixon's closest adviser and friend. He has been on trial in New York for 10 weeks on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice.

The 46 tapes subpoenaed by Jaworski cover 64 separate conversations between Nixon and members of his staff over the year ending June, 1973. Jaworski believes that every aspect of Watergate and the related scandals are discussed on these tapes.

At the direction of the special prosecutor's office, the trial of the seven has been put over until September. This was done to be sure that the question of the subpoenas could be cleared through the courts before the trial starts. Further delays are almost certain to result from

So even with a fat advance of $25,000, the performer may have to sell 200,000 records or more just to get back to zero. And sad to relate, about 75% of all records never recover their costs.

"There is nothing illegal about any of this," one prominent insider explained to us. "But it's immoral, without a doubt." Small wonder, he sighed, that there are so many somber songs among today's teen-age hits.

FOOTNOTE: Spokesmen for the big, reputable companies say their artists average 55 to 65 cents per album based on the $5.98 list price, with a decrease as the price drops. As in the payola scandal, the rich establishment companies have done little to self-police their industry.

The bizarre behavior of U.S. Ambassador to Saigon Graham Martin did not end with his advice to the State Department to be dishonest with senators about U.S. policy in Indochina.

Martin has now suggested in a rambling letter to a pacifist clergyman visiting Saigon, the Rev. George Webber somehow personally responsible for the recent death by Communist mortar fire of 32 Vietnamese children. Webber, of course, denies the charges.

(c) 1974 U. F. SYND.

defense motions with the possibility that the defendants may ask to be tried separately.

The trial of the seven will take many weeks, if not months. On June 17 six defendants are to go on trial in Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's court for breaking into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The principals are Ehrlichman and Colson, together with G. Gordon Liddy and three Cuban-Americans involved in the Watergate break-in. That trial is expected to last seven weeks.

The litigation clearly will go on well into the congressional campaign and perhaps beyond. But the system is working both in the prosecution and in the courts. That is the heartening aspect of this long-drawn-out ordeal.

The trial of Dwight L. Chapin, the President's former appointments secretary, was a model of decorum. Convicted on two counts of lying to a federal grand jury, both Chapin and his lawyer thanked Judge Gesell for his conduct of the case. Gesell had thrown out one count of the four-count indictment and the jury found Chapin innocent on another count.

With diminishing returns as the trials are completed, the special prosecutor's office could become an adjunct of the Department of Justice. That is not likely to happen so long as William B. Saxbe is attorney general. His record of foot-in-mouth is unparalleled.

Survey: 36% Believe Possession Possible

By LOUIS HARRIS
Although a majority, 52%, of the American people says it does not believe in demonism, a substantial 36% do think that "people are sometimes possessed — taken over in mind and body by a demon or the Devil."

Louis Harris
Phenomenon Baffling

With the popular success of the motion picture, "The Exorcist," the possibility of such a phenomenon has received wide currency. A total of five per cent of Americans 18 years and over — one in every 20 — report to the Harris Survey that either they, themselves, or "someone close to them" have actually been "possessed by the Devil."

In the aggregate, that comes to over 7 million adults in this country. The phenomenon of "people becoming possessed" is baffling to believers and unbelievers alike. No more than 16% overall feel that modern medicine and psychiatry have successfully diagnosed that cause of such aberrations. Another 30% feel that it has been "somewhat explained," but a majority, 54%, either feels all explanations thus far have been inadequate or simply do not know how to explain the reported episodes.

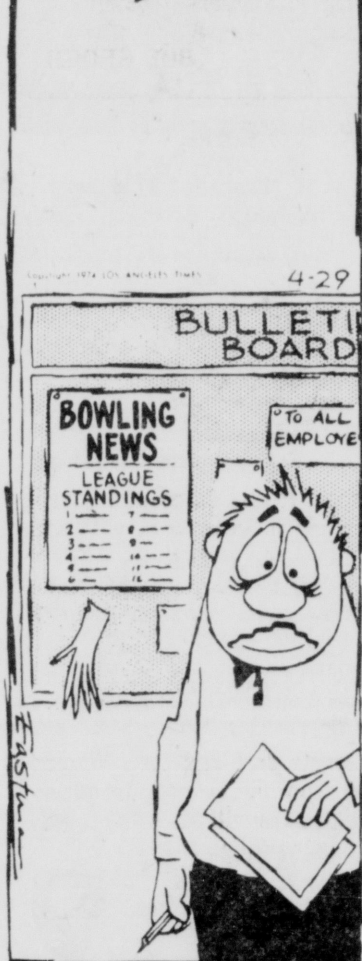

The question of demonology has attracted wide-spread public interest with the publication of the book, "The Exorcist," and the movie subsequently made from the book. Fully 74% in a national cross section say they have followed the exorcism issue. A majority of 53% says it personally believes in the existence of the Devil, while no more than 30% deny it.

When asked about the ceremony of exorcism, as sometimes practiced in the Catholic Church to "drive evil spirits out of a person," by 55-25% a majority of the American people says it does not believe in such a process. However, among Catholics, a narrow 41-40% plurality does believe in it.

Recently, a cross section of 1-495 households was questioned

Forecast For Monday

Virgo keeps active. Grandma Moses was painting when she was 88 years old. She was a Virgo and these natives must feel useful to keep alive. Virgo can also be thrifty in the sense that the value of money figures prominently. The two most "alive" signs are Virgo and Gemini. When it comes to movement and restlessness, these two Virgo, if you find a "settled" Gemini or Virgo, you have made a rare discovery.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Ideas strike chord of response. Original thinking pays dividends. Vision, short journeys and relatives figure in important ways. Leo, Aquarius persons are drawn to you. Take initiative in making contacts. Present yourself — and product — in positive, confident manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money, collections, what you possess and basic values are emphasized. You are drawn in two directions and one could involve land investment. Key now is to observe, to check, to take inventory, to be positive that you are not building on castle of sand.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunar cycle is high; trust judgment, intuition. Spotlight personality, appearance. Go places — see and be seen. Popularity quotient increases. Social activity accelerates. You are provided with valuable information — for a song.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Restrictions are evident. Deal with them in calm, mature manner. Keep promise to one who is confined to home or hospital. Follow concepts of Golden Rule. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons may be in picture. Your timing will be on target.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent is on friends, hopes, gains through professional or business endeavors. You deal with opposite sex. You make significant changes. Your ability to analyze and draw accurate deductions is highlighted. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diplomatic report with one in authority is essential. Be receptive, especially where Taurus, Libra individuals enter picture. Advancement is made — but you have to cooperate, including acceptance of overtime assignment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are able to examine motives, to confront yourself, to see in light of reality. There is element of mystery — but you can use it to advantage. Don't reveal all. Keep something in reserve. Someone is trying to get something for nothing — from you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pressure is applied. Some around you "smell" money. Study Libra message. Keep cooperative. Gain full understanding of partner, mate. Budget can be discussed intelligently, without rancor. Delve beneath surface indications.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Slow pace. Be a keen observer. Spotlight is on public relations, partnership, cooperative effort — and marriage. Relationship is tested. Phase of activity ends. You are on brink of new beginning. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Vitality makes somewhat of a comeback. Pursue fresh viewpoint. Refuse to be tied down in aura of discouragement. Improve relations with associates, co-workers. Innovations now will be received in enthusiastic manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect coincides now with romance, creativity, change. Children, members of opposite sex are in picture. Dramatize beliefs — illustrate point of view. Self-expression is of paramount importance to successful conclusions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent is on home, basic issues, property values. Examine various possibilities. You feel restless, restricted. But you also meet people who can aid in expanding horizons. Be open, willing to learn and experiment. Dynamic associate will show the way.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural teacher, intuitive, willing to examine unorthodox theories, methods. August should be one of your most important months of 1974. Aquarius and Leo persons are drawn to you. You are completing a major cycle. If married, you reach new understanding of your mate. If single, you may find that marriage is on horizon.

Purple Bunny Given To Dali

NEW YORK (AP) — Salvador Dali, his wife, Gala, and a purple, 5-foot-tall "Bugs Bunny" doll are on their way back to Europe.

The surrealist painter, who spent three months in the United States, got the doll as a bon voyage gift as he got ready to sail on the liner France.

It was a gift from A. Reginald Morse, president and director of the Salvador Dali Museum in Cleveland.

Dali, who is known for his eccentricities, said the bunny was "ugly and frightening," but promised to turn it into a work of art — by "painting it in mayonnaise."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Antonio — The San Antonio river wanders through the town — "crooked as a pothook" wrote O. Henry. The banks are lined with stone. Gardened with broad leaf banana plants. Shaded by cypress and cottonwoods.

It's a gurgling little river below street level. Two miles of pathways take you under rainbow arch bridges. Past Mexican restaurants rich with the smell of chicken mole and hot tortillas.

You can sit at a shaded table below the level of traffic noise and eat creamy goat cheese and jalapeno peppers hot as a sheriff's pistol.

I flew down on American Air's breakfast flight for the big Fiesta when San Antonio (should say San Antonio) goes slightly mad.

The opener is a river parade of lighted floats, and I was lucky to have a man from San Antonio explain it at the table.

"The parade is run by the Texas Cavaliers. A kind of aristocracy of local businessmen. I mean you've got to be born with a silver spoon in your mouth to get in. Those are the men in the powder blue uniforms.

"The air bases around here bring in the bands. You know, they've got good bands. You get in an air base band, you don't pull any regular duty. Just put on a uniform once in awhile and blow your horn.

"Let me tell you, there's a lot of competition for those jobs."

There were about 30 floats. Jazz bands. Girls throwing flowers.

King Antonio of the Fiesta — "name's Jim Cavender. He's the Oldsmobile dealer and has a fine a place as you'd ever see. You could put a picnic lunch on his shop floor and eat there."

He said: "Now this float here with the musicians. That fellow in the back steering — the one with the Cavalier uniform — he used to play the sousaphone with that band. Played for years and years.

"Name's Willson Davis, a produce broker and I expect he's a millionaire or mighty close.

"Well, he said: 'I been playing this sousaphone since 1963 and I reckon it's time to quit.' So they said: 'Willson can you do something else?' and he said: 'Well I'll run the boat.'"

San Antonio is now 750,000 people — a shade bigger than San Francisco. Texas is an intimate country. A kind of small town intimacy. Everybody in the county knows everybody else and all about them.

He said: "Now Willson Davis could take that sousaphone there and teach that fellow more about it in a block than he could learn in a year."

It's a big occasion for the Cavaliers who don't seem to do much except live from one fiesta to prepare for the next.

Every day open cars full of Cavaliers sweep by the Hilton Hotel with motorcycle cops sirening ahead.

"Maybe just going somewhere to lunch," said the man at the table.

He said: "The other day I ran into Willson Davis on the street and he said to me: 'I been wearing these shoes in every fiesta since 1963 and I thought I'd get a new pair but I can't find The Guarantee Shoe Company where I bought them."

"I said: 'Why Mr. Davis I think The Guarantee moved about 15 years ago. They're out in McClellan Shopping Center.'"

"He said: 'They did? Well, I'll be damned.'"

"I looked at his shoes. They were high polished but there was a little break at the heel. I said: 'Do you reckon they'll have the same style?'"

"He said: 'Well, they'd better.'"

Not All Land OK To Irrigate

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

We hear a lot of statements about how wonderful irrigation is for Nebraska's economy but now and then there is a voice of caution in the midst of the demand for more water on more land.

The simple fact is that irrigation is just not feasible on every piece of land in Nebraska, according to Dr. Leslie Sheffield, who is busy promoting irrigation but wants the irrigation installations to be successful.

"The biggest problem in irrigation is the selection of a proper site for the installation of a center pivot irrigation system in the sandhills area," he said.

"You can get into deep trouble with the choppy sands when you remove the vegetative cover from the area," he warned.

Cropland Lake
Another problem cited by Sheffield is the wet meadow which can create a lake in the midst of your cropland.

"Moving hill tops that are really sand dunes is particularly dangerous because once the grass is gone it is terribly difficult to get any kind of vegetation started again," he explained.

Sheffield said he knew of one 160-acre site that was now bare sand which is beginning to blow onto neighboring pastureland covering the grass in effect creating a ever growing blowout or miniature desert.

"Stopping one of these sandy areas from expanding is extremely difficult. Ranchers usually cover them with hay, straw, manure or auto tires in an effort to keep the sand tied down until they can get grass started. Irrigation water alone won't do it. It will start blowing again within a few minutes after the sprinkler has passed the area," he said.

Maybe No Profit
Sheffield said such irrigation systems had sometimes proven unprofitable to the point of bankruptcy for investors who had thought the way to get rich quick was to buy a piece of the sandhills and turn it into corn ground.

Usually they are non-farm investors with some experience in owning land under irrigation where soil types don't move in the wind as readily as the Valentine-type sand does in much of western Nebraska.

Sheffield warns that farming under center pivot systems requires a higher level of management than running cattle on grass. "It is a different kind of management. I think it might be better, and probably more profitable, to grow alfalfa under irrigation than corn on some of these sites until the farmers are used to them. This would tie in with their existing operations better and it would be less expensive to get into than corn farming because a rancher would already have some haying equipment and could avoid buying grain if he used alfalfa. He could also market his increased crop production through his cattle," he said.

Sheffield has hopes that better management techniques for irrigating in the sandhills can be developed at the new sandhills field laboratory near Tryon.

System Is Expensive
Sheffield emphasizes that it is possible to make a good profit on a properly selected site for a center pivot irrigation system growing corn, but it is expensive. "Costs have jumped alarmingly in the last three years. It cost $99.91 an acre to own and operate a pivot system in a typical sandhills system in 1970.

By 1973 this had increased to $120.30 per acre, and this year we estimate that it will be $163.14 per acre. Most of this year's increase is due to a doubling of fuel and fertilizer prices," he said.

The shortage of fuel and of fertilizer can ruin a farmer who spends about $42,000 to install and equip a single system on 160 acres.

The shortages of equipment and supplies haven't discouraged farmers and investors from installing more irrigation systems, however. Record demand for pumps, sprinklers and engines are reported from throughout the state.

Sheffield suggests that minimum tillage is essential for a successful operation. "Don't disturb any more sand than you absolutely have to. Try to maintain as much grass as possible until you can get a good cover of corn stalks to protect against wind damage. Cornstalks do work well if undisturbed. I don't like to see silage cut from a sandhills site unless it is in strips," he said.

One sandhills rancher does remove a part of the corn for silage, but he leaves strips of stalks and covers the harvested area with a liberal application of manure and straw to hold the sand. It seems to be working so far.

Insurance is another must for sandhills irrigation farming. "Hail is a real danger to the crop, and wind can destroy an expensive irrigation system in a few moments. I have seen one system reduced to scrap and a number that were badly damaged in tornadoes and wind storms," he added.

Irrigation is good for farmers, for the community and for Nebraska but not necessarily good for every piece of ground in Nebraska. Unwise irrigation can be a disaster for the investor and for those living near him if the sand begins blowing again in western Nebraska through misuse of our greatest resource, our underground water supply.

Who Should Control NU Health Center?

Omaha (AP) — The Lancaster County Medical Society Sunday posed the question of who should control the student health center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The Lancaster group introduced a resolution at the convention of the Nebraska Medical Association saying the center should be "physician directed and controlled."

The proposal also calls for transferring responsibility for the center from the control of the chancellor of the Lincoln campus to that of the chancellor of the NU Medical Center in Omaha.

Reorganization of the health center has been under discussion by the Board of Regents.

Regents voted April 20 to go ahead with reorganization, effective in July. It will make UNL Chancellor James Zumberge responsible for student fee supported activities at the center.

Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, now responsible for the entire program, will continue to handle the center's teaching programs, environmental health and safety, medical care for athletes and physical fitness research.

At the April session, Regent chairman Kermit Hansen of Omaha said the reorganization was designed to eliminate fiscal losses.

The Lancaster County group's resolution says the center's health program is threatened with division and contends the controversy already has resulted in the resignation of key medical staff members.

On another matter, voting delegates to the convention were asked to complete surveys on medical manpower and referral of patients to specialists.

The request came from Dr. Richard A. Cottingham of McCook, chairman of the Health Planning Committee formed by the association a year ago.

The survey will be a trial run. Association officials said plans are to expand the study to include either a representative sampling of physicians or all doctors.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

What can a farmer do about the high prices of the things he has to buy to keep his farm going? The answer is to buy a little fewer of them or when possible get along without them at all. This is what the consumer did when she thought meat was too high. I would like to suggest that the consumers give some thought about the choice they made when they chose gasoline instead of beef.

Farm Editor
You, dear consumer, are fouling up the balance of payments by exporting money for oil instead of riding the bus and buying beef. You are also lousing up your diet by eating all that starch. Keep it up and your husband will run off with a slender, rich sheik's daughter.

Farmers who buy fertilizer costing $500 a ton are kidding themselves. There is no way they can make that pay out unless corn rises well above $3.00. It costs $2.00 a bushel to grow corn in most places with today's open market prices for inputs. Paying black market prices just encourages black marketeers, and it also puts farmers out of business just as quickly as a meat boycott did.

Parts of Eastern Europe are still having problems with their wheat crop. Official reports tell glowing stories of how farmers are solving the problem. These sound suspiciously like the local head farm manager trying to hold onto his job in spite of bad weather.

Worldwide Service
The entire world still needs a good worldwide crop reporting service equal to our own.

One of the leading candidates for the third district congressional seat in Nebraska is campaigning against the statistical reports, but he is aiming at the wrong target. We need the reports and the information in them. What we are not getting is an accurate report of what is in the data gathered by the statisticians or, we are getting a political interpretation of what the data indicates.

Our statistical service needs more money, not less. While the secrecy surrounding the compilation of the reports may be desirable from some standpoints, I feel it should be reviewed in the light of some of the data changes we see after the information leaves the states and comes out of the Washington office of the Agriculture Department.

If you don't think data is valuable to the ordinary person, just think of what the oil companies have been able to do to John Q. Citizen by withholding data. This nation's economy is totally interdependent. We can't afford to allow any segment to keep its production data secret. The data itself is not the problem. It is the people who play with it that cause the problems.

Grain prices respond to all sorts of things these days. The floods in Mississippi drove the sagging prices of cotton and soybeans back up to the limit on the futures market, and apparently the downward pressure on the corn market resulted from the changes in buying plans by Mainland China.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz predicted that American Wheat Prices will stabilize "around the $4.00 mark," in a news conference in the Philippines. Butz is on a world trip trying to sell more American grain overseas over a long-term period.

Translated into Nebraska prices this would predict a fall wheat price of about $3.20. He may be pretty close. A lot of wheat orders have been delayed until the '74 harvest appears in the marketplace.

Lightning Hits Feeder Line; Electricity Out

Lightning struck a 12,500-volt feeder line at 84th and Pioneers Sunday evening and knocked out power in a five-square-mile area of southeast Lincoln, a Lincoln Electric System spokesman said.

The area affected, running from 56th to 90th and A to Pioneers Blvd., was without electricity between 10 p.m. and 11:27 p.m., he said.

He reported that other electrical problems during the thunderstorm were minor and scattered.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Farm Editor
Farmers facing skyrocketing fertilizer and fuel costs are worried about what grain prices will be by harvest time this fall.

A random survey of 55 of the best farmers I know tells me that they feel that it will cost them no less than $2.00 a bushel to grow corn in Nebraska this year.

This is an all-cost figure but all these costs do have to be paid eventually in one way or another. The cash out of pocket figure is utterly non-recoverable. It is going to be a floor price under corn for sure, and the two-dollar figure may well put strength under corn because more farmers are more aware of actual costs than they used to be.

Feed grain demand around the world is good. The increase in the supply of rail equipment to elevators in the next 90 days should move a lot of grain to market and to ports, easing carryover problems considerably.

Feedlot operators are starting to buy substantial quantities of grain, and most of the movement from grain farm and elevator to the feedlot's storage system via truck.

If we get a substantial recovery in livestock feeding we could easily see three-dollar corn again this year. But without feedlot interest, the price could sag to a level below the cost of production on many farms.

Farmers have an unfortunate tendency to make judgements on the basis of today's price instead of what they might expect prices to be at harvest time or market time

It will start blowing again within a few minutes after the sprinkler has passed the area," he said.

Maybe No Profit
Sheffield said such irrigation systems had sometimes proven unprofitable to the point of bankruptcy for investors who had thought the way to get rich quick was to buy a piece of the sandhills and turn it into corn ground.

Usually they are non-farm investors with some experience in owning land under irrigation where soil types don't move in the wind as readily as the Valentine-type sand does in much of western Nebraska.

Sheffield warns that farming under center pivot systems requires a higher level of management than running cattle on grass. "It is a different kind of management. I think it might be better, and probably more profitable, to grow alfalfa under irrigation than corn on some of these sites until the farmers are used to them. This would tie in with their existing operations better and it would be less expensive to get into than corn farming because a rancher would already have some haying equipment and could avoid buying protein if he used alfalfa. He could also market his increased crop production through his cattle," he said.

Sheffield has hopes that better management techniques for irrigating in the sandhills can be developed at the new sandhills field laboratory near Tryon.

System Is Expensive
Sheffield emphasizes that it is possible to make a good profit on a properly selected site for a center pivot irrigation system growing corn, but it is expensive.

"Costs have jumped alarmingly in the last three years. It cost $99.91 an acre to own and operate a pivot system in a typical sandhills system in 1970.

By 1973 this had increased to $120.30 per acre, and this year we estimate that it will be $163.14 per acre. Most of this year's increase is due to a doubling of fuel and fertilizer prices," he said.

The shortage of fuel and of fertilizer can ruin a farmer who spends about $42,000 to install and equip a single system on 160 acres.

The shortages of equipment and supplies haven't discouraged farmers and investors from installing more irrigation systems, however. Record demand for pumps, sprinklers and engines are reported from throughout the state.

Sheffield suggests that minimum tillage is essential for a successful operation. "Don't disturb any more sand than you absolutely have to. Try to maintain as much grass as possible until you can get a good cover of corn stalks to protect against wind damage. Cornstalks do work well if undisturbed. I don't like to see silage cut from a sandhills site unless it is in strips," he said.

One sandhills rancher does remove a part of the corn for silage, but he leaves strips of stalks and covers the harvested area with a liberal application of manure and straw to hold the sand. It seems to be working so far.

Insurance is another must for sandhills irrigation farming. "Hail is a real danger to the crop, and wind can destroy an expensive irrigation system in a few moments. I have seen one system reduced to scrap and a number that were badly damaged in tornados and wind storms," he added.

Irrigation is good for farmers, for the community and for Nebraska but not necessarily good for every piece of ground in Nebraska. Unwise irrigation can be a disaster for the investor and for those living near him if the sand begins blowing again in western Nebraska through misuse of our greatest resource, our underground water supply.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
What can a farmer do about the high prices of the things he has to buy to keep his farm going? The answer is to buy a little fewer of them or when possible get along without them at all. This is what the consumer did when she thought meat was too high. I would like to suggest that the consumers give some thought about the choice they made when they chose gasoline instead of beef.

Farm Editor
You, dear consumer, are fouling up the balance of payments by exporting money for oil instead of riding the bus and buying beef. You are also lousing up your diet by eating all that starch. Keep it up and your husband will run off with a slender, rich sheik's daughter.

Farmers who buy fertilizer costing $500 a ton are kidding themselves. There is no way they can make that pay out unless corn rises well above $3.00. It costs $2.00 a bushel to grow corn in most places with today's open market prices for inputs. Paying black market prices just encourages black marketeers, and it also puts farmers out of business just as quickly as a meat boycott did.

Parts of Eastern Europe are still having problems with their wheat crop. Official reports tell glowing stories of how farmers are solving the problem. These sound suspiciously like the local head farm manager trying to hold onto his job in spite of bad weather.

Worldwide Service
The entire world still needs a good worldwide crop reporting service equal to our own.

One of the leading candidates for the third district congressional seat in Nebraska is campaigning against the statistical reports, but he is aiming at the wrong target.

We need the reports and the information in them. What we are not getting is an accurate report of what is in the data gathered by the statisticians or, we are getting a political interpretation of what the data indicates.

Our statistical service needs more money, not less. While the secrecy surrounding the compilation of the reports may be desirable from some standpoints, I feel it should be reviewed in the light of some of the data changes we see after the information leaves the states and comes out of the Washington office of the Agriculture Department.

If you don't think data is valuable to the ordinary person, just think of what the oil companies have been able to do to John Q. Citizen by withholding data. This nation's economy is totally interdependent. We can't afford to allow any segment to keep its production data secret. The data itself is not the problem. It is the people who play with it that cause the problems.

Grain prices respond to all sorts of things these days. The floods in Mississippi drove the sagging prices of cotton and soybeans back up to the limit on the futures market, and apparently the downward pressure on the corn market resulted from the changes in buying plans by Mainland China.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz predicted that American Wheat Prices will stabilize "around the $4.00 mark," in a news conference in the Philippines. Butz is on a world trip trying to sell more American grain overseas over a long-term period.

Translated into Nebraska prices this would predict a fall wheat price of about $3.20. He may be pretty close. A lot of wheat orders have been delayed until the '74 harvest appears in the marketplace.

Lightning Hits Feeder Line; Electricity Out

Lightning struck a 12,500-volt feeder line at 84th and Pioneers Sunday evening and knocked out power in a five-square-mile area of southeast Lincoln, a Lincoln Electric System spokesman said.

The area affected, running from 56th to 90th and A to Pioneers Blvd., was without electricity between 10 p.m. and 11:27 p.m., he said.

He reported that other electrical problems during the thunderstorm were minor and scattered.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers facing skyrocketing fertilizer and fuel costs are worried about what grain prices will be by harvest time this fall.

A random survey of 55 of the best farmers I know tells me that they feel that it will cost them no less than $2.00 a bushel to grow corn in Nebraska this year.

This is an all-cost figure but all these costs do have to be paid eventually in one way or another. The cash out of pocket figure is utterly non-recoverable. It is going to be a floor price under corn for sure, and the two-dollar figure may well put strength under corn because more farmers are more aware of actual costs than they used to be.

Feed grain demand around the world is good. The increase in the supply of rail equipment to elevators in the next 90 days should move a lot of grain to market and to ports, easing carryover problems considerably.

Feedlot operators are starting to buy substantial quantities of grain, and most of the movement from grain farm and elevator to the feedlot's storage system via truck.

If we get a substantial recovery in livestock feeding we could easily see three-dollar corn again this year. But without feedlot interest, the price could sag to a level below the cost of production on many farms.

Farmers have an unfortunate tendency to make judgements on the basis of today's price instead of what they might expect prices to be at harvest time or market time.

Who Should Control NU Health Center?

Omaha (AP) — The Lancaster County Medical Society Sunday posed the question of who should control the student health center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The Lancaster group introduced a resolution at the convention of the Nebraska Medical Association saying the center should be "physician directed and controlled."

The proposal also calls for transferring responsibility for the center from the control of the chancellor of the Lincoln campus to that of the chancellor of the NU Medical Center in Omaha.

Reorganization of the health center has been under discussion by the Board of Regents.

Regents voted April 20 to go ahead with reorganization, effective in July. It will make UNL Chancellor James Zumbruge responsible for student fee supported activities at the center.

Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, now responsible for the entire program, will continue to handle the center's teaching programs, environmental health and safety, medical care for athletes and physical fitness research.

At the April session, Regent chairman Kermit Hansen of Omaha said the reorganization was designed to eliminate fiscal losses.

The Lancaster County group's resolution says the center's health program is threatened with division and contends the controversy already has resulted in the resignation of key medical staff members.

On another matter, voting delegates to the convention were asked to complete surveys on medical manpower and referral of patients to specialists.

The request came from Dr. Richard A. Cottingham of McCook, chairman of the Health Planning Committee formed by the association a year ago.

The survey will be a trial run. Association officials said plans are to expand the study to include either a representative sampling of physicians or all doctors.

Johnson was named as the 1974 Nebraska recipient of the A. H. Robbins "Bowl of Hygiea" for outstanding community service.

The award is presented annually by the A. H. Robbins Pharmaceutical Co.

Few Dare The Untraditional

Just as the career horizon for women has changed, either willingly or through force, in past decades, so has the job market as a whole. Along with that has come the development of the technical trades, the emphasis on acquisition of technical skills and resultant respectability for the trades.

Little more than one-fifth of the occupations listed in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles requires a college degree, while 70% to 80% of Lincoln's high school graduates enter college, Spencer said.

Recent high school graduates, particularly the college-bound, are idealistic, said Dee Friesen, counselor in the UNL Educational Psychology Department, citing a study comparing the career aspirations of high school students in the Netherlands and the United States.

The study found that, in the European nation, the same percentage of students showed inclinations to be doctors, lawyers and skilled technicians as were needed by the society. Conversely, 80% of American students wanted professional and managerial jobs while only 20% of the opportunities lie in those areas.

"Certain types of technical and skilled jobs will continue to be needed in the future," said Gene Landkammer, manager of the Lincoln office, State Department of Labor, Division of Employment. He said demand will continue to exist for persons skilled in the fields of computer science, electronics, ecology, personal services and nursing.

That has been affirmed by a study conducted by the Nebraska Research Coordinating Unit for Vocational Education.

Random sample interviews with 5% of the estimated 80,000 employers in the state revealed an expected increased demand for farming, fishery, forestry, processing, machine trades and bench and structural work while the need for professional, managerial, clerical and sales skills was expected to decline, said Elton Mendenhall, research unit director.

He said the fastest-growing occupations will be computer programming, recreation, social work, medical laboratory technicians and radiology, with the need for computer systems analysts expected to double in the future.

With advanced technology and the rapidly changing world, the job picture seemingly changes overnight, said Dr. Vernon Williams, UNL associate professor of educational psychology and measurements and higher education.

Thus, the occupational outlook may have undergone many decisive changes by the time today's high school graduates have completed their college or trade or technical school educations, he observed.

"Students are attuned to changes in the job market." When they hear about a good field with openings they flock to that field," he said citing previous turn-abouts in the law and journalism professions — areas which recently had openings but soon were "flooded." The current need for special education, pre-school, day care and kindergarten teachers may result in a similar surplus in four years' time, he said.

"We've told our kids in the past . . . that to be successful they have to go to college, maybe we shouldn't tell our kids now that to have success they have to go to technical school," Landkammer warned, pointing to an expected

increased demand for semi-skilled labor

But those young persons still intent on pursuing college educations should look at college training as a valuable experience "to learn to organize, learn to learn, learn to be adaptable to different kinds of jobs" not just as a means to a specific career, Landkammer advised.

"That career may not be available in 10 years

What Will Future Hold For Today's Students?

Editor's Note: This is the first in a five-part series examining the expanding career choices, with particular emphasis on the opportunities for young women. Today — Are women entering new fields?

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The women's liberation movement and federal legislation to the contrary, masses of young persons are not hurdling the sexual barriers and seeking non-traditional careers.

By and large, women still are the secretaries, not the lawyers; nurses, not doctors; teachers, not professors and administrators; technicians, not engineers — thus leaving the careers with "professional" status to the males.

That's the opinion of Lincoln public school and college administrators, counselors and job placement officials.

"Although more (Nebraska) women are engaging in professional and technical occupations, the rate of gain has been slightly less than the rate of increase shown by males (40.01% compared to 41.5%)," according to "Business in Nebraska," a publication of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Business Administration.

"Women have, however, made notable inroads in some special categories of such employment," the publication continued, citing a 200% increase in female accountants and 45% increase (an actual gain of 15) in lady lawyers from 1960 to 1970. The increase of males in both occupations was less than 27%.

In addition, "the number of women physicians, dentists, pharmacists and osteopaths . . . (showed) an 83% gain, while the number of men in those professions increased by only 4%," the publication noted.

However, first semester enrollment statistics at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln failed to paint a bright outlook.

Even as traditional female careers are seemingly drying up (an apparent teacher surplus has been observed for years and hospitals, often the providers of nursing training, are going out of the nursing school business) the traditionally male-dominated colleges — engineering, agriculture, architecture, business administration, dentistry, law, pharmacy — with a total enrollment of 7,037, had only 736 female students.

And arts and sciences, home economics and teaching remained to be the primary fields of study for females.

There has been little evidence of crossing over with males breaking into the female areas, according to UNL personnel, citing as an example the College of Home Economics, with only 12 men registered.

Similarly, 998 of the 2,956 UNL graduate students were women — and the university's total enrollment was 8,206 females and 12,954 males.

"Women are missing the boat by not entering these fields (not usually occupied by females)," said Frank Hallgren, director of UNL Career Planning and the Placement Center, adding "Companies are definitely looking for women. They are delighted to find women in any field" as legal and personal barriers are torn down.

"There is no difficulty for a young woman to compete with a young man in any field," Hallgren said. Not everyone agrees with Hallgren.

"It's just not accurate. It is foolish to say society accepts men on the same basis as women for certain jobs," countered Carl Spencer, director of career counseling, Lincoln Public Schools.

Widower Yearns To Live Again

DEAR ABBY: How can a man come back to life at 53 after 13 years of life without life?

My wife died recently after a long illness, and I've been out of circulation for so long I don't know where to begin making a new life for myself.

I may sound cold and heartless, but now that she is gone, I feel a sense of freedom. You see, she left my bed 13 years ago and never showed me any sign of affection after that, so in my view our marriage ended then. (She thought a man over 40 didn't need a woman to sleep with.)

My ego has been ground down to a pulp publicly and privately more times than I can count. My only source of satisfaction is in knowing that I stuck with her until the bitter end without cheating on her once, although I often was tempted.

Now I am free to find a woman who can compensate for all that emptiness, Abby. I am so full of love, and so eager to give it to someone. I can hardly stand it.

Somewhere there must be a woman who is willing to take on a steady assignment like that. But where do I start looking? I need it now. Thirteen years is long enough. I ask only for one with stamina. Thanks.

DEAR GEORGE: Call your friends — married and single — and let them know you are interested in dating. You'll be swamped! Find out what your church and community have to offer in the way of social programs. Get into a volunteer work. (That's a good way to meet people with similar interests.) Get out and get going. Some lucky gal has a treat coming.

DEAR ABBY: There is a teacher at school who makes some of us girls sick. He pulls the hair out of his sideburns and eats it!

We would like to know why he does this, and what we can do to make him stop.

NAUSEATED
DEAR NAUSEATED: I don't know about humans, but monkeys have been known to pull the hair out of their heads and eat it when they are despondent and frustrated. I think your teacher needs help.

DEAR ABBY: In response to an inquiry last summer from a woman who wanted to marry a married man whose wife had disappeared years before, you advised: "Contact the Salvation Army. Box 3856: Lt. Col. Pauline Eberhart, San Francisco, Cal. They have had remarkable success in locating missing persons."

That gave me an idea. I had been searching through the usual channels for a brother who had been missing for 47 years. No success. So I thought: "Why not give it a chance?"

I wrote to the Salvation Army per your suggestion, giving them the necessary information, and they went to work.

Last week they reported that they had been successful, and they forwarded me a photostatic copy of a letter they had received from my lost brother. And in the same mail I also received a letter from him. What a marvelous surprise!

Abby, how can I thank you!

L.T. IN SEATTLE

DEAR L.T.: Don't thank me. Thank those wonderful people at the Salvation Army who do so much for so many in every corner of the world.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both dieting. We were invited to spend the weekend with some close relatives of mine. When I accepted, I expressly asked my aunt to please keep the food simple, and not to bake because we were dieting. She agreed.

When we got there she had pumpkin bread, fudge brownies, cheesecake and all the things we love and couldn't resist.

Because we are good friends, I spoke up and said I wished she hadn't done all that, especially since I had asked her not to. It caused hurt feelings.

Now the family says that it's up to the dieters to resist temptation because others should not have to go without. We say when houseguests ask the hosts not to serve high calorie foods she should comply. What do you think?

CALORIE COUNTER

DEAR COUNTER: Your aunt agreed to comply with your wishes, and she broke her promise. Shame on auntie. If she felt you were being unfair to the other guests by requesting she limit her menu to low-calorie food, she should have said so.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office building. There's a woman down the hall who smokes about a pack of cigarettes a day, and she burns every one of them! She knows there are several smokers in this office, so she runs in just about every 30 minutes and asks if "anybody" has a cigarette.

I asked her why she didn't buy some, and she said: "I'm not supposed to be smoking at all, and if I buy them I'll only smoke them." (I wonder what she thinks she is doing with the cigarettes she buys off us?)

Is there some real sharp answer we can give her when she comes in here to bum a cigarette?

SUCKER

DEAR SUCKER: Don't look for a "sharp" answer. Tell her if she's going to smoke she'll have to buy her own. That's sharp enough.

DEAR ABBY: Before a trip last year I bought my husband a bikini swim suit. He wore it to the beach and you should have seen the heads turn. He has a great physique and looked gorgeous.

My problem is, he won't wear it again. He says men shouldn't wear anything so revealing in public. When I remind him that he wore it on our vacation and attracted a lot of attention, he says: "They were laughing at me. That's why I'm not wearing it again."

Abby, we've finally liberated women so they can wear next to nothing and get away with it. Why not men?

Maybe if you gave your approval he'd wear that sexy-looking bikini again.

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Get off his gorgeous back. Women who reveal too much lose much of their appeal. And that goes double for men.

New Standards For Sleepwear

Washington (AP) — The government Thursday announced new fire-resistant standards for children's sleepwear sizes 7-14 which will take effect a year from now.

The requirements for robes, pajamas and nightgowns are somewhat less rigid than those in place since last July 29 for sizes 0-6x because "older children are better equipped to cope with the hazards of fire."

The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission said the Department of Health Education and Welfare has estimated that up to 5,000 deaths and 250,000 injuries result from flammable fabric each year, but the commission is developing its own injury statistics.

What Will Future Hold For Today's Students?

Editor's Note: This is the first in a five-part series examining the expanding career choices, with particular emphasis on the opportunities for young women. Today — Are women entering new fields?

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The women's liberation movement and federal legislation to the contrary, masses of young persons are not hurdling the sexual barriers and seeking non-traditional careers.

By and large, women still are the secretaries, not the lawyers; nurses, not doctors; teachers, not professors and administrators; technicians, not engineers — thus leaving the careers with "professional" status to the males.

That's the opinion of Lincoln public school and college administrators, counselors and job placement officials.

"Although more (Nebraska) women are engaging in professional and technical occupations, the rate of gain has been slightly less than the rate of increase shown by males (40.01% compared to 41.5%)," according to "Business in Nebraska," a publication of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Business Administration.

"Women have, however, made notable inroads in some special categories of such employment," the publication continued, citing a 200% increase in female accountants and 45% increase (an actual gain of 15) in lady lawyers from 1960 to 1970. The increase of males in both occupations was less than 27%.

In addition, "the number of women physicians, dentists, pharmacists and osteopaths . . . (showed) an 83% gain, while the number of men in those professions increased by only 4%," the publication noted.

However, first semester enrollment statistics at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln failed to paint a bright outlook.

Even as traditional female careers are seemingly drying up (an apparent teacher surplus has been observed for years and hospitals, often the providers of nursing training, are going out of the nursing school business) the traditionally male-dominated colleges — engineering, agriculture, architecture, business administration, dentistry, law, pharmacy — with a total enrollment of 7,037, had only 736 female students.

And arts and sciences, home economics and teaching remained to be the primary fields of study for females.

There has been little evidence of crossing over, with males breaking into the female areas, according to UNL personnel, citing as an example the College of Home Economics, with only 12 men registered.

Similarly, 998 of the 2,956 UNL graduate students were women — and the university's total enrollment was 8,206 females and 12,954 males.

"Women are missing the boat by not entering these fields (not usually occupied by females)," said Frank Hallgren, director of UNL Career Planning and the Placement Center, adding "Companies are definitely looking for women. They are delighted to find women in any field" as legal and personal barriers are torn down.

"There is no difficulty for a young woman to compete with a young man in any field," Hallgren said. Not everyone agrees with Hallgren.

"It's just not accurate. It is foolish to say society accepts men on the same basis as women for certain jobs," countered Carl Spencer, director of career counseling, Lincoln Public Schools.

Next: Students Speak Out.

Few Dare The Untraditional

Just as the career horizon for women has changed, either willingly or through force, in past decades, so has the job market as a whole.

Along with that has come the development of the technical trades, the emphasis on acquisition of technical skills and resultant respectability for the trades.

Little more than one-fifth of the occupations listed in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles requires a college degree, while 70% to 80% of Lincoln's high school graduates enter college, Spencer said.

Recent high school graduates, particularly the college-bound, are idealistic, said Dee Friesen, counselor in the UNL Educational Psychology Department, citing a study comparing the career aspirations of high school students in the Netherlands and the United States.

The study found that, in the European nation, the same percentage of students showed inclinations to be doctors, lawyers and skilled technicians as were needed by the society. Conversely, 80% of American students wanted professional and managerial jobs while only 20% of the opportunities lie in those areas.

"Certain types of technical and skilled jobs will continue to be needed in the future," said Gene Landkammer, manager of the Lincoln office, State Department of Labor, Division of Employment. He said demand will continue to exist for persons skilled in the fields of computer science, electronics, ecology, personal services and nursing.

That has been affirmed by a study conducted by the Nebraska Research Coordinating Unit for Vocational Education.

Random sample interviews with 5% of the estimated 80,000 employers in the state revealed an expected increased demand for farming, fishery, forestry, processing, machine trades and bench and structural work while the need for professional, managerial, clerical and sales skills was expected to decline, said Elton Mendenhall, research unit director.

He said the fastest-growing occupations will be computer programming, recreation, social work, medical laboratory technicians and radiology, with the need for computer systems analysts expected to double in the future.

With advanced technology and the rapidly changing world, the job picture seemingly changes overnight, said Dr. Vernon Williams, UNL associate professor of educational psychology and measurements and higher education.

Thus, the occupational outlook may have undergone many decisive changes by the time today's high school graduates have completed their college or trade or technical school educations, he observed.

"Students are attuned to changes in the job market," When they hear about a good field with openings they flock to that field," he said citing previous turn-outs in the law and journalism professions — areas which recently had openings, but soon were "flooded." The current need for special education, pre-school, day care and kindergarten teachers may result in a similar surplus in four years' time, he said.

We've told our kids in the past . . . that to be successful they have to go to college, maybe we shouldn't tell our kids now that to have success they have to go to technical school," Landkammer warned, pointing to an expected increased demand for semi-skilled labor.

But those young persons still intent on pursuing college educations should look at college training as a valuable experience "to learn to organize, learn to learn, learn to be adaptable to different kinds of jobs" not just as a means to a specific career, Landkammer advised.

"That career may not be available in 10 years."

Widower Yearns To Live Again

DEAR ABBY: How can a man come back to life at 53 after 13 years of life without life?

My wife died recently after a long illness, and I've been out of circulation for so long I don't know where to begin making a new life for myself.

I may sound cold and heartless, but now that she is gone, I feel a sense of freedom. You see, she left my bed 13 years ago and never showed me any sign of affection after that, so in my view our marriage ended then. (She thought a man over 40 didn't need a woman to sleep with.)

My ego has been ground down to a pulp publicly and privately more times than I can count. My only source of satisfaction is in knowing that I stuck with her until the bitter end without cheating on her once, although I often was tempted.

Now I am free to find a woman who can compensate for all that emptiness. Abby, I am so full of love, and so eager to give it to someone, I can hardly stand it.

Somewhere there must be a woman who is willing to take on a steady assignment like that. But where do I start looking? I need it now. Thirteen years is long enough. I ask only for one with stamina. Thanks.

GEORGE
DEAR GEORGE: Call your friends — married and single — and let them know you are interested in dating. You'll be swamped! Find out what your church and community have to offer in the way of social programs. Get into a volunteer work. (That's a good way to meet people with similar interests.) Get out and get going. Some lucky gal has a treat coming.

DEAR ABBY: There is a teacher at school who makes some of us girls sick. He pulls the hair out of his sideburns and eats it!

We would like to know why he does this, and what we can do to make him stop.

DEAR ABBY: In response to an inquiry last summer from a woman who wanted to marry a married man whose wife had disappeared years before, you advised: "Contact the Salvation Army, Box 3856: Lt. Col. Pauline Eberhart, San Francisco, Cal. They have had remarkable success in locating missing persons."

That gave me an idea. I had been searching through the usual channels for a brother who had been missing for 47 years. No success. So I thought: "Why not give it a chance?" I wrote to the Salvation Army per your suggestion, giving them the necessary information, and they went to work.

Last week they reported that they had been successful, and they forwarded me a photostatic copy of a letter they had received from my lost brother. And in the same mail I also received a letter from him. What a marvelous surprise!

Abby, how can I thank you! L.T. IN SEATTLE
DEAR L.T.: Don't thank me. Thank those wonderful people at the Salvation Army who do so much for so many in every corner of the world.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both dieting. We were invited to spend the weekend with some close relatives of mine. When I accepted, I expressly asked my aunt to please keep the food simple, and not to bake because we were dieting. She agreed.

When we got there she had pumpkin bread, fudge brownies, cheesecake and all the things we love and couldn't resist.

Because we are good friends, I spoke up and said I wished she hadn't done all that, especially since I had asked her not to. It caused hurt feelings.

Now the family says that it's up to the dieters to resist temptation because others should not have to go without. We say when houseguests ask the hostess not to serve high calorie foods she should comply. What do you think?

CALORIE COUNTER

DEAR COUNTER: Your aunt agreed to comply with your wishes, and she broke her promise. Shame on auntie. If she felt you were being unfair to the other guests by requesting she limit her menu to low-calorie food, she should have said so.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office building. There's a woman down the hall who smokes about a pack of cigarettes a day, and she bums every one of them!

She knows there are several smokers in this office, so she runs in just about every 30 minutes and asks if "anybody" has a cigarette.

I asked her why she didn't buy some, and she said: "I'm not supposed to be smoking at all, and if I buy them I'll only smoke them." (I wonder what she thinks she is doing with the cigarettes she bums off us?)

Is there some real sharp answer we can give her when she comes in here to bum a cigarette?

SUCKER

DEAR SUCKER: Don't look for a "sharp" answer. Tell her if she's going to smoke she'll have to buy her own. That's sharp enough.

DEAR ABBY: Before a trip last year I bought my husband a bikini swim suit. He wore it to the beach and you should have seen the heads turn. He has a great physique and looked gorgeous.

My problem is, he won't wear it again. He says men shouldn't wear anything so revealing in public. When I remind him that he wore it on our vacation and attracted a lot of attention, he says: "They were laughing at me. That's why I'm not wearing it again."

Abby, we've finally liberated women so they can wear next to nothing and get away with it. Why not men?

Maybe if you gave your approval he'd wear that sexy-looking bikini again.

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Get off his gorgeous back. Women who reveal too much lose much of their appeal. And that goes double for men.

New Standards For Sleepwear

Washington (AP) — The government Thursday announced new fire-resistant standards for children's sleepwear sizes 7-14 which will take effect a year from now.

The requirements for robes, pajamas and nightgowns are somewhat less rigid than those in place since last July 29 for sizes 0-6x because "older children are better equipped to cope with the hazards of fire," the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission said.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare has estimated that up to 5,000 deaths and 250,000 injuries result from flammable fabric each year, but the commission is developing its own injury statistics.

Election — 1974:

Burbach In Uphill Battle For Lieutenant Governor Nomination

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Veteran State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, a force in the Unicameral for almost two decades, wants to trade his legislative post for one in the executive branch of state government.

If he succeeds in gaining the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor next month, Burbach would be teamed in the general election campaign with the man he opposed in the Democratic gubernatorial primary election of 1970, Gov. J. James Exon.

Burbach, 62, a grain, feed and seed dealer and livestock feeder, has twice sought his party's gubernatorial nomination. Four years ago, he almost won it.

That's when Exon shaded him by 3,212 votes, marching from there to the governorship itself. Burbach won 51,760 votes in that primary, and with that base of past support, plus a campaign designed to improve his name recognition, he believes he might win it all this time.

name than Gerald Whelan, Exon's choice for a running mate.

But Whelan has made great strides since then, his name constantly linked with Exon in a joint Exon-Whelan advertising campaign. He has also been on the road almost constantly since March 1.

So Burbach hopes to counter with a final splurge of radio advertising designed to implant the name "Burbach" in the minds of Democratic voters.

BURBACH . . . longtime senator.

respect the governor, and they are going to vote for him, they don't want to be told who to vote for as lieutenant governor."

been at the center of Burbach's legislative performance.

Introduced Exemptions

It was Burbach who introduced the original legislation which led to homestead property tax exemptions.

As longtime chairman of the Revenue Committee, he shaped the 1967 sales-income tax law and its accompanying state aid programs.

It was Burbach who sponsored a program of property tax exemptions for farm and business inventories and equipment, and he has been a long-time supporter of a more state financial aid for the schools.

(In 1974, he supported enactment of major school aid increases over the governor's veto. In the Legislature's other major showdown with Exon, Burbach sided with the governor in his item veto objections to two of three major budget bills.)

Worked For Balance

"I have worked in the Legislature for equity in taxation, a balance among property, sales and income taxes," Burbach explained in a Statehouse interview last February.

"I think we're much closer to that than we've ever been before."

Burbach expects to spend between $12,000 and $15,000 on his primary campaign, most of which goes either to radio, weekly newspapers or billboards.

Because of legislative activities, his travel has been somewhat limited — although he expects to reach most areas of the state before Election Day.

Even though he lost a mighty tight race for the gubernatorial nomination four years ago, Burbach was not depressed.

Looking at the election results from his home stomping grounds in Knox and Cedar Counties, he was pleased. He won Cedar by 9 to 1, and Knox by a 3 to 1 margin.

"I lost that race, but I never felt sick about it," he said. "I had the support of my home people, the people who know me best."

They've sent Burbach to the Legislature seven times — four times without any opposition at all.

His legislative colleague, State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, carries the best known name into the race.

Battling For Votes

Burbach figures that he and Whelan are now battling for what may be a large "undecided" vote, little of which is available to Carpenter.

In the end, he figures, adding numbers on a notepad in his hotel room, he may just edge Whelan for the nomination.

"I'll tell you one thing," Burbach said. "I'm not a yes man for anyone. That's not the democratic process."

"If you want a yes man, you hire an administrative assistant."

Yet, Burbach insists, he and Exon would make a compatible team.

No Problem With Exon

"I have no great problems with the governor," he said. "We have had differences of opinion."

Exon "Made a mistake" in endorsing a lieutenant governor candidate before the primary election, Burbach believes.

"I find that people are not reacting favorably to that," he said. "Even though they like and

Election — 1974:

Burbach In Uphill Battle For Lieutenant Governor Nomination

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Veteran State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, a force in the Unicameral for almost two decades, wants to trade his legislative post for one in the executive branch of state government.

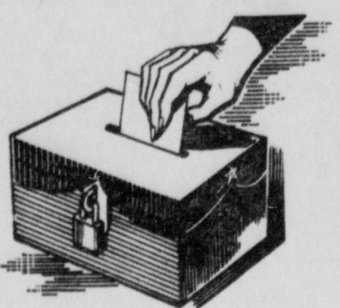

If he succeeds in gaining the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor next month, Burbach would be teamed in the general election campaign with the man he opposed in the Democratic gubernatorial primary election of 1970, Gov. J. James Exon.

Burbach, 62, a grain, feed and seed dealer and livestock feeder, has twice sought his party's gubernatorial nomination. Four years ago, he almost won it.

decades, wants to trade his legislative post for one in the executive branch of state government.

If he succeeds in gaining the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor next month, Burbach would be teamed in the general election campaign with the man he opposed in the Democratic gubernatorial primary election of 1970, Gov. J. James Exon.

Burbach, 62, a grain, feed and seed dealer and livestock feeder, has twice sought his party's gubernatorial nomination. Four years ago, he almost won it.

That's when Exon shaded him by 3,212 votes, marching from there to the governorship itself. Burbach won 51,760 votes in that primary, and with that base of past support, plus a campaign designed to improve his name recognition, he believes he might win it all this time.

name than Gerald Whelan, Exon's choice for a running mate.

But Whelan has made great strides since then, his name constantly linked with Exon in a joint Exon-Whelan advertising campaign. He has also been on the road almost constantly since March 1.

So Burbach hopes to counter with a final spurge of radio advertising designed to implant the name "Burbach" in the minds of Democratic voters.

Battling For Votes

Burbach figures that he and Whelan are now battling for what may be a large "undecided" vote, little of which is available to Carpenter.

Carpenter Best Known

His legislative colleague, State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, carries the best known name into the race.

But, Burbach believes, Carpenter's support may peak at about the 29% total which he received in 1972 when he won the Democratic nomination for a U.S. Senate seat.

Burbach began this year's campaign with a better known

In the end, he figures, adding numbers on a notepad in his hotel room, he may just edge Whelan for the nomination.

"I'll tell you one thing," Burbach said. "I'm not a yes man for anyone. That's not the democratic process."

"If you want a yes man, you hire an administrative assistant."

Yet, Burbach insists, he and Exon would make a compatible team.

No Problem With Exon

"I have no great problems with the governor," he said. "We have had differences of opinion."

Exon "Made a mistake" in endorsing a lieutenant governor candidate before the primary election, Burbach believes.

"I find that people are not reacting favorably to that," he said. "Even though they like and respect the governor, and they are going to vote for him, they don't want to be told who to vote for as lieutenant governor."

BURBACH . . . longtime senator.

Has Ag Experience

Of the four men in the Democratic scrap (State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue is the third candidate from the Legislature), Burbach said, "I'm the only one who has had agricultural experience for 37 years."

Add to that his 18 years of experience in the Legislature and a legislative record anchored to real and personal property tax relief, Burbach said, and he is the man for the job.

"I think I pulled the natural resources legislation out of chaos," he said. "And I've been active in highway improvements and support for the mentally retarded."

But property tax relief has been at the center of Burbach's legislative performance.

Introduced Exemptions

It was Burbach who introduced the original legislation which led to homestead property tax exemptions.

As longtime chairman of the Revenue Committee, he shaped the 1967 sales-income tax law and its accompanying state aid programs.

It was Burbach who sponsored a program of property tax exemptions for farm and business inventories and equipment, and he has been a long-time supporter of a more state financial aid for the schools.

In 1974, he supported enactment of major school aid increases over the governor's veto. In the Legislature's other major showdown with Exon, Burbach sided with the governor in his item veto objections to two of three major budget bills.)

Worked For Balance

"I have worked in the Legislature for equity in taxation, a balance among property, sales and income taxes," Burbach explained in a Statehouse interview last February.

"I think we're much closer to that than we've ever been before."

Burbach expects to spend between $12,000 and $15,000 on his primary campaign, most of which goes either to radio, weekly newspapers or billboards.

Because of legislative activities, his travel has been somewhat limited — although he expects to reach most areas of the state before Election Day.

Even though he lost a mighty tight race for the gubernatorial nomination four years ago, Burbach was not depressed.

Looking at the election results from his home stomping grounds in Knox and Cedar Counties, he was pleased. He won Cedar by 9 to 1, and Knox by a 3 to 1 margin.

"I lost that race, but I never felt sick about it," he said. "I had the support of my home people, the people who know me best."

They've sent Burbach to the Legislature seven times — four times without any opposition at all.

Railroad Has 67% Increase In Quarter Net

New York (AP) — The Norfolk & Western Railway Co. reported a 67% increase in profits for the first quarter of 1974.

The company earned $37.1 million in the first three months of this year. This compares with a $22.3 million profit in the first three months of 1973.

John P. Fishwick told security analysts here that the profit picture reflects the sale of $14.8 million of property in Norfolk, Va. The figure includes $1.8 million for losses on the retirement of track and other improvements not sold, Fishwick said.

Consolidated operating revenues rose to $241.9 million for the first quarter, up from $222.4 million in the first three months of 1973.

Wallace Gaining Some Black Help

Montgomery, Ala. (AP) — Eleven years after his "segregation forever" speech, Gov. George C. Wallace is seeking re-election with the promised support of some black leaders in Alabama.

He is heavily favored to win renomination in the May 7 Democratic primary, and political analysts in and out of the state will be watching to see how many black votes Wallace can muster.

His expected victory against four opponents may be the signal for another presidential race in 1976, and the backing of a substantial number of blacks could affect his national image.

Black leaders who have endorsed Wallace for an unprecedented third term say they have done so because he has softened his segregation image, and because they figure he'll win anyway and will be indebted to them for their support.

Jesse J. Lewis, publisher of the black weekly Birmingham Times which is backing the governor, put it bluntly: "If you have a stew and people bring meat and potatoes and carrots, and someone doesn't bring anything, they shouldn't get any of the stew."

Johnny Ford, the black mayor of Tuskegee who came out for Wallace earlier and predicted he will get a substantial black vote throughout the state, said the governor has shown his willingness to "help all the people, particularly those who really need it."

And, he added, "our citizens have come to realize that voting for people is one way of assuring that their community will get at least its fair share of resources."

The governor also has the endorsement of the Ozark Voters League, which claims a membership of several hundred blacks, and of the Alabama faction of the Southern Democratic Conference.

The numerically stronger black wing of the Democratic party in the state, the Alabama Democratic Conference, has endorsed the most active of Wallace's opponents, state Sen. Gene McLain of Huntsville.

McLain promised to appoint black cabinet members if elected. Wallace has made no such commitment, but has said he will make the appointments on merit, regardless of race. He has no blacks in his cabinet now.

The governor, who made an unexpected appearance at a meeting of Southern black leaders in Tuskegee earlier this year, has welcomed the black endorsements.

But he says he hasn't changed; that he has always fought for the interests of "all the people of Alabama" and that those who called him a racist just didn't understand.

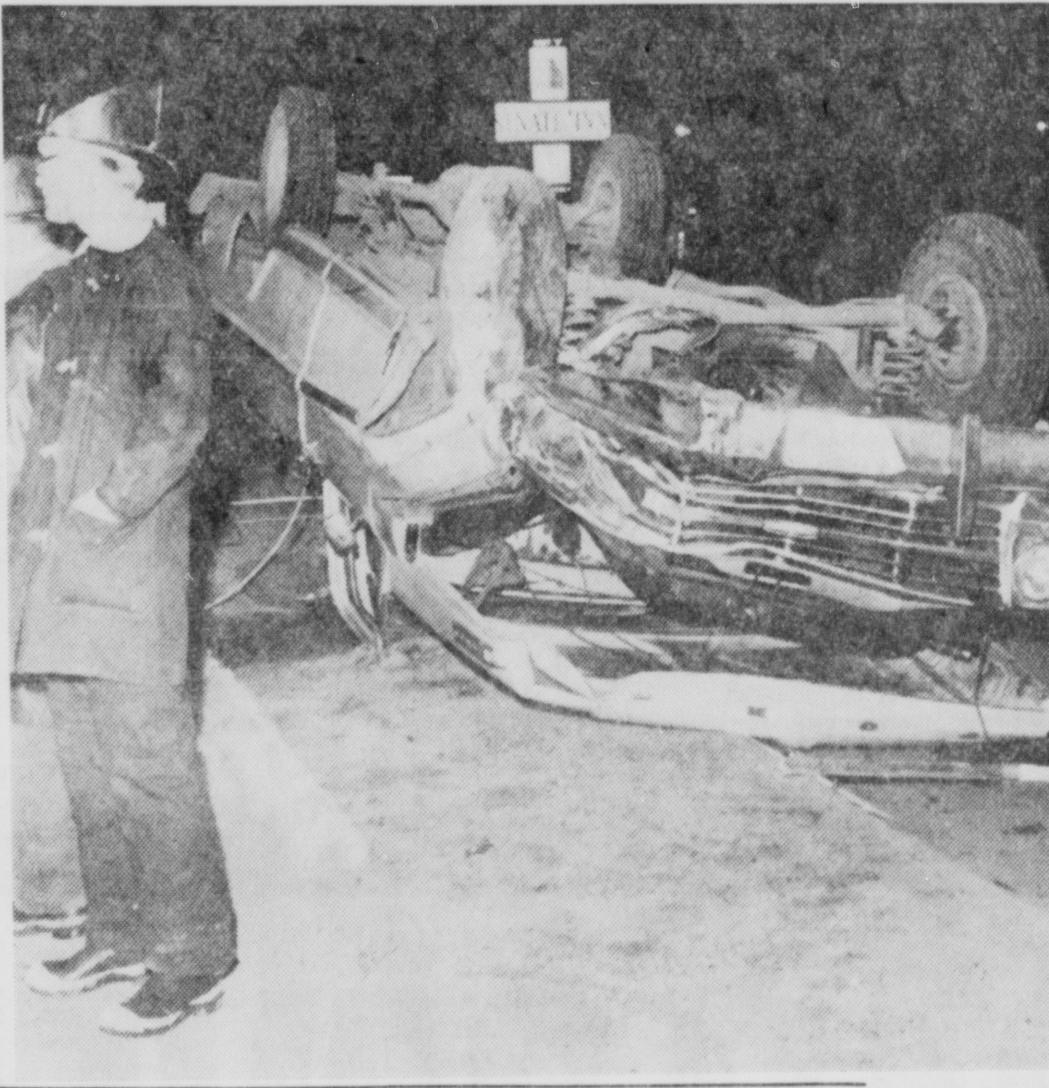

Wallace tells his followers in almost every speech that "I'm running for governor" and nothing else. But he makes it clear that he will get into the presidential race again "if I decide it's in the best interest of the people of Alabama." And that usually brings the loudest cheers.

Besides McLain, the governor is opposed by his wife's uncle, former Gov. James "Big Jim" Folsom; a perennial also-ran candidate, Ralph "Shorty" Price, and a newcomer, Thomas Wesley Robinson.

Two Hurt In Accident On West O

Joseph and Theresa Sis, of 3201 W. were listed in "fair" condition at St. Elizabeth Health Center following a car-truck crash at N.W. 28th and West O early Sunday morning, according to the Lancaster County Sheriff's office. The Sis couple suffered multiple injuries when their car was in a head-on collision with a pickup truck driven by Donald Oenbring, 22, of rural Bennet. Deputies said the Oenbring vehicle was westbound on the wrong side of the road when the accident occurred. The pickup (photo at right) was found on its top on the median but Oenbring escaped injury. The Sis vehicle ended up off the roadway, above. (Star Photos By Jim DeCamp.)

Report On Child May Be Written

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Beginning this fall, parents may receive new written forms charting their children's progress — or no forms at all.

Either way, each elementary school must report to parents at least four times each year, and hold a minimum of two conferences, under a policy adopted last week by the Lincoln Board of Education.

The policy says each elementary school is responsible for developing and using a reporting system.

Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, said schools may use a classroom or school newsletter, home visits, telephone contacts, personal notes, or have parents visit classrooms.

The checklist used the past two years will be dropped in favor of a rating form or a narrative form, or both. Or neither: Use of written reports is at the discretion of each elementary school.

"There was some dissatisfaction with the form," Brandt said.

Clarification

The new forms clarify the school district's total philosophy, which is currently followed but was never formally adopted by the school board, he said.

Current reporting forms list goals under subject areas of study, and teachers evaluate children's accomplishments by marking columns labeled "seldom," "sometimes" or "never."

Should a school choose to send written reports, two new forms will be allowed, rating what is reasonably expected of a child as an individual.

On one, easily understandable goals describe subject areas that teachers rate and comment about. They include reading, writing, language arts, science, social studies, art, music and physical education.

Personal, Social Growth

Both a child's "progress" and "effort" will be rated by the designations C—commendable, S—satisfactory, and N—not yet satisfactory. Teachers will also comment on a child's personal and social growth, with no letter designation.

The narrative form a school may use allows strictly written comments on personal and social growth, arts and physical education, academic skills and recommendations.

Bethany School Principal Richard R. Spearman said, "We will encourage the local school to use supplementary materials" if it sends written reports.

For example, he explained in an interview, a teacher may include a list of reading skills a child has mastered during the report period.

Spearman chaired the Elementary Reporting Committee to Parents, which drafted the approved policy statements.

Little Change Seen

Brandt said he believes "the reporting system that schools are using will be relatively unchanged."

The two conferences for parents, according to the policy, must be scheduled at the ends of the first and third 9-week terms.

In the conferences (and each school may choose to offer more than two), Spearman told The Star, teachers will explain to parents "where their child stands in relation to other children;" for example, comparing achievement test results.

He pointed out the written reports are intended to complement discussion in conferences about a child's comparative progress.

Hop, Hop, Hop, Etc.

Lyle Craig was tired and had a blistered foot, but Sunday afternoon he proclaimed himself the new world's champion pogo stick rider.

Lyle, 12, completed 18,000 hops in under 2½ hours to take the title from Joe Carlisle, 13, of Santa Barbara, Calif. Joe had claimed the title last week with 15,000 jumps.

Lyle said he didn't undertake the record for any special reason, but that he just wanted to claim it as his.

Lyle completed his historic hop in front of six witnesses: Jeff, Tim and Bert Cheever, ages 14, 13, 11; his brother, Neal, 14; his sister, Cindy Smack, 25, and her daughter, Karen, 9.

Lyle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Craig, 3740 Cleveland Ave. He is a fifth grader at Huntington Elementary School.

Police, Boys' Camp Eyed At Plattsmouth

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb. (AP)—A boys' camp and a police training center could be in the offing in a grassy hollow on the north end of Granville Heebner land, about a mile south of Plattsmouth.

Trucker Richard Knight of Omaha said the Metropolitan Law Enforcement Agency—representing law officials of eight counties and 20 cities—would "apply immediately" for federal funds to aid in building the camp.

Knight, an official of the Pacific Intermountain Express, met Heebner, a retired stone quarry man from Nebraska City, on an Omaha Show Boat and their conversation turned to the need for such a camp.

"We got to talking and I told him of our desire to establish a regional summer camp," Knight said. "Then he told me of this land he had near the river."

He offered the use of any part of the land as a summer camp. A creek runs through the property and there is an old stone house with a deep potato cellar. They believe the house can be repaired.

Also planned are a fishing pond and perhaps a swimming pool, an all purpose gymnasium, a stable and dorm-style cabins.

Report On Child May Be Written

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Beginning this fall, parents may receive new written forms charting their children's progress — or no forms at all.

Either way, each elementary school must report to parents at least four times each year, and hold a minimum of two conferences, under a policy adopted last week by the Lincoln Board of Education.

The policy says each elementary school is responsible for developing and using a reporting system.

Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, said schools may use a classroom or school newsletter, home visits, telephone contacts, personal notes, or have parents visit classrooms.

The checklist used the past two years will be dropped in favor of a rating form or a narrative form, or both. Or neither: Use of written reports is at the discretion of each elementary school.

"There was some dissatisfaction with the form," Brandt said.

Clarification
The new forms clarify the school district's total philosophy, which is currently followed but was never formally adopted by the school board, he said.

Current reporting forms list goals under subject areas of study, and teachers evaluate children's accomplishments by marking columns labeled "seldom," "sometimes" or "never."

Should a school choose to send written reports, two new forms will be allowed, rating what is reasonably expected of a child as an individual.

On one, easily understandable goals describe subject areas that teachers rate and comment about. They include reading, writing, language arts, science, social studies, art, music and physical education.

Personal, Social Growth
Both a child's "progress" and "effort" will be rated by the designations C-commendable, S-satisfactory, and N-not yet satisfactory. Teachers will also comment on a child's personal and social growth, with no letter designation.

The narrative form a school may use allows strictly written comments on personal and social growth, arts and physical education, academic skills and recommendations.

Bethany School Principal Richard R. Spearman said, "We will encourage the local school to use supplementary materials" if it sends written reports.

For example, he explained in an interview, a teacher may include a list of reading skills a child has mastered during the report period.

Spearman chaired the Elementary Reporting Committee to Parents, which drafted the approved policy statements.

Little Change Seen
Brandt said he believes "the reporting system that schools are using will be relatively unchanged."

The two conferences for parents, according to the policy, must be scheduled at the ends of the first and third 9-week terms.

In the conferences (and each school may choose to offer more than two), Spearman told The Star, teachers will explain to parents "where their child stands in relation to other children;" for example, comparing achievement test results.

He pointed out the written reports are intended to complement discussion in conferences about a child's comparative progress.

TIME OUT

By Steve Gillispie
Star Sports Writer

Women's Athletics Main Topic

Des Moines, Iowa — The topic of discussion for most coaches and athletic officials here at the 65th annual Drake Relays was women's athletics — its effect, impact on current men's programs and the future.

The main reason women's athletics are causing so much concern is where the money is coming from to fund the programs. Many men are afraid some of their athletic programs are going to be cut because of the money squeeze.

Almost all men agree that there should be athletic programs for women, but they don't think that some men's sports should be dropped or limited in order to start something for women.

However there is a general feeling among the men that some of their sports will be cut some to fund new women's programs.

One of the men's main objections to such action is that none of the women's programs may turn out to produce revenue — take in more money than is spent for expenses. Several men's sports, depending mainly on the school, are money makers.

About the only point that the men seem to agree on is that regardless of what takes place concerning women's athletics there is going to be some changes and these changes are going to upset some men.

Holmes Happy With Missouri Valley

Among the many athletic officials at the Drake Relays was Missouri Valley Conference commissioner Mickey Holmes, promoting his conference at every chance.

Holmes left the Big Eight as an assistant to the commissioner to take over as head of the Missouri Valley with the intention of building the stature of the conference and he's satisfied with that progress.

"We had so many things to do internally because we have many different types of schools," Holmes says. "We have private, church and public where the Big Eight is just public.

"We've used a lot of the ideas in the Missouri Valley that were successful in the Big Eight, but have applied those ideas in a basic way because there's no way to compare the two conferences."

Holmes expressed his pleasure in Nebraska building a new fieldhouse and said it would help the Huskers improve in winter sports.

Holmes also commented on the growth in women's athletics, an area he feels his conference has taken the lead in comparison to other conferences.

"The sooner we get with women's athletics, the better off we'll be because it's here to stay," he notes. "Drake is in the process of hiring a woman athletic director in our conference and many of our other schools are also thinking in these terms."

With all the premier athletes participating in the Drake Relays, one is reminded how fortunate Nebraska Wesleyan is to have two all-Americans on the same team.

The new false start method used at the Texas and Kansas Relays, wasn't used at Drake. Only runners who actually false started were credited here with a false start.

SOMETHING MISSING?

Roscoe Tanner of the U.S. returns a shot over the net in his match with Jan Kodes during their match in the World Championship Tennis tourney in Denver. Tanner lost his racket on the serve. Tanner defeated Kodes and will meet Arthur Ashe in the finals.

Sooners Eye Big 8 Title

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners can nail down the Big Eight Conference baseball championship next weekend.

The Sooners travel to Kansas State for a three-game series with the second-place Wildcats Friday and Saturday and need only two victories to wrap it all up.

Oklahoma, 14-1 in league play, took another giant stride toward the title the past weekend, sweeping another series in 4-0, 10-3 and 7-3 games with old rival Oklahoma State.

The Wildcats, meanwhile, lost to Iowa State 1-0 before grabbing two victories by 7-1 and 4-0 over the Cyclones Saturday. K-State is 10-5.

Miller Tops Champions

Fifth Tourney Win Of 1974

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — "Two or three years ago," Johnny Miller said, "you'd have seen a different finish by Johnny Miller."

"You guys just don't know what goes through your mind when you're coming down the stretch like that and the tournament is at stake."

"But," he said and grinned broadly, "when you've already won four tournaments and $150,000, it makes it a lot easier."

Miller, the skinny blond with the whiplash swing who has been the sensation of the pro golf tour this year, was talking about his Sunday triumph in the prestige-laden Tournament of Champions.

He won it by a stroke, making birdie on the 16th hole then clutching it with a clutch four-foot par putt on the final hole after Buddy Allin and bitterly disappointed John Mahaffey had dropped out of a three-way tie with bogeys on the same hole.

Had Miller missed the putt it would have been a three-way, sudden-death playoff.

"I just hung on tight with the left hand and let it go," said Miller, who collected his fifth title of the young season.

"If someone had told me on Jan. 1 that I would have won five tournaments and almost $200,000 I'd have said, 'maybe for the year it's possible, but this early? Man you must be having a pipe dream.'"

Miller won it with a final round 69, including a brilliant three-under-par 33, on the brutally tough back nine.

All three were tied for the lead going to the final hole of this elite event which brings together only the winners of regular golf tour events for the last 12 months.

Allin and Mahaffey bogeyed and Miller won with his one-putt par.

Miller had a 72-hole total of 280, eight under par on the sunny, wind-swept La Costa Country Club course. Allin, the leader through the first two rounds here, had a closing 71 and Mahaffey, a runnerup for the third time this year, shot a 70.

Miller, who began his lightning grab for glory with a record-setting triumph in last year's United States Open Championship, collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 and pushed his winnings for the season to a bulky $192,877—a record for this time of the year.

His previous wins this season were in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, the Tucson and Phoenix opens, and the Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

With victories in Spain and France late last year, he now has won eight times in 10 months

Billy Casper came on to take fourth with a 71—283, three strokes back. Gene Littler, Jerry Heard and Hubert Green followed at 285. Littler and Heard had 71s and Green, a two-time winner this year, went to a 74.

Bob Charles, the New Zealand lefty who led by a stroke at the end of 54 holes, blew to a 77-286. Jack Nicklaus, the only four-time winner of this tournament, finished poorly. He had a 75-287.

Lee Trevino was last in the 25-man field. He had a final round 72 and a 300 total.

Allin, who had blown a big second-round lead, regained the top spot with a front-nine 33. But Miller caught him with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 16th about the same time Mahaffey hit his approach 2½ feet from the cup and birdied the 17th.

That made it a three-way tie. Mahaffey played the 18th first and made bogey from the high grass around the green. Allin got his drive in the rough, then bunkered his second and failed to reach the green with his third. He, too, made bogey.

Miller, 6-foot-2 and 160 pounds, put his second shot in the fringe, chipped to four feet and, with the tournament at stake, sank the putt.

Johnny Miller: $40,000
Buddy Allin: $19,500
John Mahaffey: $19,500
Billy Casper: $10,200

Celtics' Press Stymies Bucks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "We're going to press no matter what," Boston Celtics' guard Jo Jo White said. "There's nothing they can do about it. They can't hire a helicopter to bring the ball up."

White scored 19 points Sunday, matching teammate Dave Cowens' output and supporting the 26 of veteran John Havlicek. But it was the Celtics' pressure defense that smothered the Milwaukee Bucks as Boston won 98-83 for a 1-0 lead in the National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"The key was our press and making them work, although it's only one ball game," Celtics' Coach Tom Heinsohn said. "The big thing is we got to play our game, our tempo."

Coach Larry Costello, whose Bucks rallied but couldn't overcome a 16-point first-quarter deficit, agreed.

"We just didn't have zip, spark or whatever," Costello said. "They pressured us to get us out of our offense."

"Pressure defense is a great defense if you have the right people, and they do," Costello said of the Celtics. "The big thing is they have such great stamina—Cowens, Havlicek, so many of them. They just keep running."

Costello said the Celtics' pressure wore down Oscar Robertson, the Bucks' 35-year-old playmaker.

"They tired Oscar out," he said. "If he was 23 years old, he'd go right by them, but they tired him out by making him dribble so much."

Robertson had to play all but two minutes because Jon McGlocklin, the Bucks' top reserve guard, pulled a calf muscle in the second quarter. His availability for the rest of the series is in doubt. Lucius Allen, a first string guard, is sidelined following mid-March knee surgery.

The second game in the best-of-seven series will be played here Tuesday night, starting at 9:30 p.m., EDT.

A three-point play by Cowens with 2:55 left made the score 89-75 and wrapped up the victory as the Celtics weathered a 35-point barrage by Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul Jabbar, the NBA's Most Valuable Player.

Bob Dandridge, who had averaged 21.2 points as the Bucks took just nine games to win their first two playoff series, was held to eight points until the final

TIME OUT

Women's Athletics Main Topic

Des Moines, Iowa — The topic of discussion for most coaches and athletic officials here at the 65th annual Drake Relays was women's athletics — its effect, impact on current men's programs and the future.

The main reason women's athletics are causing so much concern is where the money is coming from to fund the programs. Many men are afraid some of their athletic programs are going to be cut because of the money squeeze.

Almost all men agree that there should be athletic programs for women, but they don't think that some men's sports should be dropped or limited in order to start something for women.

However there is a general feeling among the men that some of their sports will be cut some to fund new women's programs.

One of the men's main objections to such action is that none of the women's programs may turn out to produce revenue — take in more money than is spent for expenses. Several men's sports, depending mainly on the school, are money makers.

About the only point that the men seem to agree on is that regardless of what takes place concerning women's athletics there is going to be some changes and these changes are going to upset some men.

Holmes Happy With Missouri Valley

Among the many athletic officials at the Drake Relays was Missouri Valley Conference commissioner Mickey Holmes, promoting his conference at every chance.

Holmes left the Big Eight as an assistant to the commissioner to take over as head of the Missouri Valley with the intention of building the stature of the conference and he's satisfied with that progress.

"We had so many things to do internally because we have many different types of schools," Holmes says. "We have private, church and public where the Big Eight is just public."

"We've used a lot of the ideas in the Missouri Valley that were successful in the Big Eight, but have applied those ideas in a basic way because there's no way to compare the two conferences."

Holmes expressed his pleasure in Nebraska building a new fieldhouse and said it would help the Huskers improve in winter sports.

Holmes also commented on the growth in women's athletics, an area he feels his conference has taken the lead in comparison to other conferences.

"The sooner we get with women's athletics, the better off we'll be because it's here to stay," he notes. "Drake is in the process of hiring a woman athletic director in our conference and many of our other schools are also thinking in these terms."

With all the premier athletes participating in the Drake Relays, one is reminded how fortunate Nebraska Wesleyan is to have two all-Americans on the same team.

Kurt Nielsen earned that honor for his high jumping efforts and Cliff Karthaus picked up the same honor at the NCAA small college cross country meet.

The new false start method used at the Texas and Kansas Relays, wasn't used at Drake. Only runners who actually false started were credited here with a false start.

SOMETHING MISSING?

Roscoe Tanner of the U.S. returns a shot over the net in his match with Jan Kodes during a match in the World Championship Tennis tourney in Denver. Tanner lost his racket on the serve. Tanner defeated Kodes and will meet Arthur Ashe in the finals.

Sooners Eye Big 8 Title

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners can nail down the Big Eight Conference baseball championship next weekend.

The Sooners travel to Kansas State for a three-game series with the second-place Wildcats Friday and Saturday and need only two victories to wrap it all up.

Oklahoma, 14-1 in league play, took another giant stride toward the title the past weekend, sweeping another series in 4-0, 10-3 and 7-3 games with old rival Oklahoma State.

The Wildcats, meanwhile, lost to Iowa State 1-0 before grabbing two victories by 7-1 and 4-0 over the Cyclones Saturday. K-State is 10-5.

Missouri and Colorado, both 9-

6, are tied for third place. Colorado took all three games from last-place Nebraska, winning 2-1 in 22 innings and 5-0 and 8-6. The Tigers won two of three from Kansas, losing 6-3 and winning 3-0 and 9-3.

This week's schedule:
Monday — Emporia, Kan., State at Kansas State, 2.
Tuesday — Iowa at Iowa State, 2; Oral Roberts at Oklahoma State, 2; Tulsa at Colorado, 2; William Jewell at Kansas, 2; Drake at Nebraska, 2; Southwestern at Oklahoma, 2.

Miller Tops Champions

Fifth Tourney Win Of 1974

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — "Two or three years ago," Johnny Miller said, "you'd have seen a different finish by Johnny Miller."

"You guys just don't know what goes through your mind when you're coming down the stretch like that and the tournament is at stake."

"But," he said and grinned broadly, "when you've already won four tournaments and $150,000, it makes it a lot easier."

Miller, the skinny blond with the whiplash swing who has been the sensation of the pro golf tour this year, was talking about his Sunday triumph in the prestige-laden Tournament of Champions.

He won it by a stroke, making birdie on the 16th hole then clinching it with a clutch four-foot par putt on the final hole after Buddy Allin and bitterly disappointed John Mahaffey had dropped out of a three-way tie with bogeys on the same hole.

Had Miller missed the putt it would have been a three-way, sudden-death playoff.

"I just hung on tight with the left hand and let it go," said Miller, who collected his fifth title of the young season.

"If someone had told me on Jan. 1 that I would have won five tournaments and almost $200,000 I'd have said, 'maybe for the year it's possible, but this early? Man you must be having a pipe dream.'"

Miller won it with a final round 69, including a brilliant three-under-par 33, on the brutally tough back nine.

All three were tied for the lead going to the final hole of this elite event which brings together only the winners of regular golf tour events for the last 12 months.

Allin and Mahaffey bogeyed and Miller won with his one-putt par.

Miller had a 72-hole total of 280, eight under par on the sunny, wind-swept La Costa Country Club course. Allin, the leader through the first two rounds here, had a closing 71 and Mahaffey, a runnerup for the third time this year, shot a 70.

Miller, who began his lightning grab for glory with a record-setting triumph in last year's United States Open Championship, collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 and pushed his winnings for the season to a bulky $192,877—a record for this time of the year.

His previous wins this season were in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, the Tucson and Phoenix opens, and the Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

With victories in Spain and France late last year, he now has won eight times in 10 months.

Billy Casper came on to take fourth with a 71—283, three strokes back. Gene Littler, Jerry Heard and Hubert Green followed at 285. Littler and Heard had 71s and Green, a two-time winner this year, went to a 74.

Bob Charles, the New Zealand lefty who led by a stroke at the end of 54 holes, blew to a 77-286. Jack Nicklaus, the only four-time winner of this tournament, finished poorly. He had a 75-287.

Lee Trevino was last in the 25-man field. He had a final round 72 and a 300 total.

Allin, who had blown a big second-round lead, regained the top spot with a front-nine 33. But Miller caught him with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 16th about the same time Mahaffey hit his approach 2 1/2 feet from the cup and birdied the 17th.

That made it a three-way tie. Mahaffey played the 18th first and made bogey from the high grass around the green. Allin got his drive in the rough, then bunkered his second and failed to reach the green with his third. He, too, made bogey.

Miller, 6-foot-2 and 160 pounds, put his second shot in the fringe, chipped to four feet and, with the tournament at stake, sank the putt.

Blalock Wins At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Jane Blalock fired a two under par 70 Sunday to win the $5,000 first prize in the Birmingham Classic by three strokes over Sandra Palmer.

Miss Blalock finished with five under par 211 and Miss Palmer with a 214 in the 54-hole tournament, which drew a crowd of about 30,000 over three days in warm, sunny weather at the 6,067-yard par 72 Green Valley Country Club course.

Sandra Haynie was third with a 215, a 54th hole bogey costing her a tie for second. Donna Caponi Young and Joann Carner tied for fourth with a 216, followed by Chako Higuchi Matsui at 217. Debbie Austin and Laura Baugh both had 218's.

IN THERE SAFE . . . Boston's Dwight Evans is safe at second while Royals' shortstop Fred Patek has the late throw. The Red Sox won in 13 innings, 5-4.

Nettles, Jenkins Share Honors

By The Associated Press
New York slugger Graig Nettles got the record, but Texas pitcher Ferguson Jenkins got the victory Sunday in the second game of the Yankee-Ranger doubleheader.

Nettles homered against Jenkins in the seventh inning—his 11th home run of April, setting an American League record and tying the major league mark. But the Ranger right-hander hung on for an 8-5 triumph, boosting his record to 5-1 and giving him six straight complete games.

Nettles' blast, a two-run shot, erased the previous American League record Frank Robinson set with Baltimore in 1969, and tied the major league mark set by Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell in 1971.

Golf Breakfast Results Noted

Three golfers tied for low net ball Sunday morning at the Hillcrest Country Club men's golf breakfast. John Porter, Jim Creighton, and Bob Caesar tied at 66, and Virgil West shot a 73 for low gross.

In the team divisions, John Porter, Duane Mikelson, Bob Mahoney and Dick Svoboda shot a best ball 53, and in the net ball class, Jack Andrews, Jim Ferris, Bob Caesar and Paul Miller teamed for a net 207.

People, Ponies Set In Omaha

By MARK GORDON Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Whether you're discussing people or horses the response was the same from Ak-Sar-Ben officials — excellent.

"I'll tell you that that's the most people we've ever had at an open house here," said assistant general manager Bob Volk. "We've been having them for about 15 years and I'd guess that we had about 16,000 people here."

Administrative assistant Bill Murphy was pleased with both the five exhibition races and the quality of the track.

"The races were excellent. I was real pleased with the horses," Murphy said. "And the track's in real fine shape. Did you see the card John Malivius (racing secretary) put together for Tuesday (opening day)? That's a standout. The smallest field has 12 horses."

While the five 5 1/2-furlong races were the featured attraction at Sunday's annual Ak-Sar-Ben open house, Volk stressed the other aspects as Ak-Sar-Ben opened several new areas.

"We really had a lot to show the people this year," Volk said.

"The new clubhouse and the color television setup. We received many favorable comments on the new clubhouse — it's something Ak-Sar-Ben has needed for years."

Volk said that seats are still available on a daily basis in the clubhouse for all of the 55 days of this year's meeting.

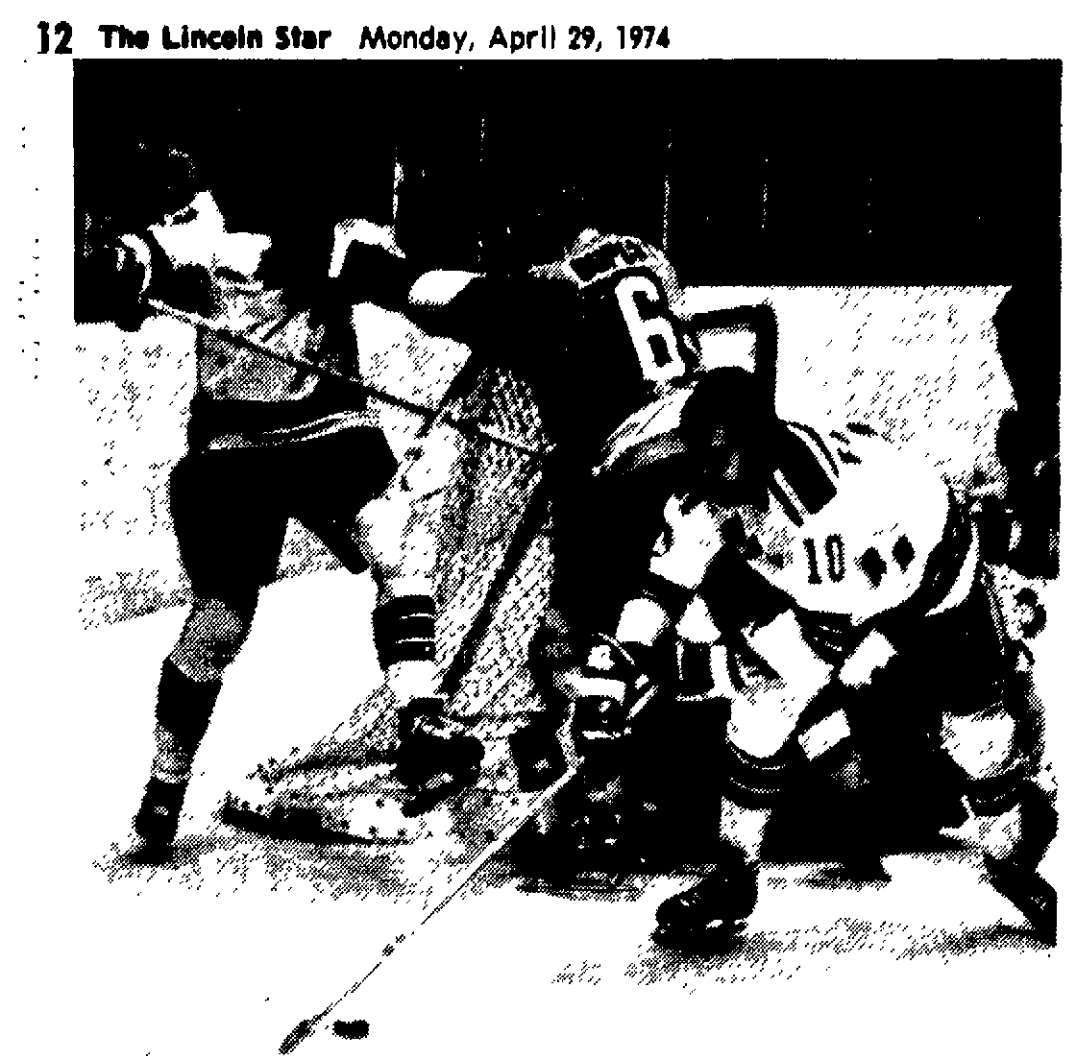

Despite the sloppiness of the track, the horses' times were relatively good.

Bev's Pride, trained by J. J. Phillips, won the fourth chase with a :53 4-5 clocking while Yor Little, the third-race victor turned in a :53 3-5 timing.

Jack Van Berg's Canadian Jeff, one of top handicap competitors here was scratched from the fifth race because of the sloppy conditions.

The results:

First race — 1. Bruce The King; 2. Chief Sunday; 3. Carbonated Copy. Also — Ronny J. Dateable, Belle Ego. T — 1:55.
Second race — 1. Battle Boogie; 2. Tag You're It; 3. Ozark Joe. Also — Fantasy. T — 57.45.
Third race — 1. Yor Little; 2. Spilly Beau; 3. Lil' Big. Also — Famous Patriot; Trumpet King. T — 54.3-5.
Fourth race — 1. Bev's Pride; 2. Ramblin' Cec; 3. Intimid Hit. Also — Bobbing. Winner, Minkmaker. Bold Sailing, Deviland Prince. T — 53.4-5.
Fifth race — 1. Tux 'N' Ali; 2. Beau Rolly; 3. Wind 'N' Sage. Also — Mamba Pili; Ace Gunner. T — 55.

Rangers Tie Series 2-2 On Gilbert's 'OT' Goal

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — He wasn't even supposed to be on the ice, but Rod Gilbert scored the overtime goal Sunday that gave the New York Rangers a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia in the fourth game of their National Hockey League semifinal playoff.

"I was sort of turning toward the bench, looking to come off," said Gilbert. "Our shift was over."

Two-thirds of Gilbert's line, Jean Ratelle and Bobby Rousseau, had made it to the bench, replaced by Walt Tkaczuk and Steve Vickers. Gilbert was supposed to be next off, but he never got there. "When I saw the puck go in their end, I stayed on," he said. "I thought, maybe we had a good chance."

It turned out to be the Rangers' best chance. Tkaczuk and Vickers worked the puck in front of Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent. "I went for the net," said Gilbert. "I was hanging there."

So was Flyer defenseman Joe Watson. "He was taking me out of the play," said Gilbert. But Watson couldn't clear Gilbert away from the net. Vickers got the puck across Parent's crease, and Gilbert tapped at it.

"I didn't get a good shot off," said Gilbert, who was sent flying by Watson. "But I got it between his legs." The red light, slow to flash on the Rangers' first goal, went on fast and New York had tied this best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal series at 2-2. Game 5 is scheduled for Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

"It was the most thrilling goal of my life," said Gilbert, who is the highest scorer in Ranger history. "I've had some happy moments, but the meaning of this game was so great for us."

A controversial goal by New York's Bobby Rousseau tied the score with less than two minutes left in the second period.

The Rangers were skating on a power play with four players against three Flyers when Rousseau fired a 50-footer at Parent. The puck hit high under the crossbar, then fell out of the net at Parent's feet.

The Ranger players thrust their sticks into the air, signifying a goal, but the red light behind the net did not go on immediately. When it did flash, Parent argued briefly, but the goal stood and the game was deadlocked 1-1.

Then the teams skated through a scoreless third period, playing cautious hockey in contrast to the wide-open style employed earlier. Referee Lloyd Gilmour called only one minor penalty in those 20 minutes compared to 17 minors and two majors in the game's first 40 minutes.

Philadelphia defenseman Joe Watson opened the scoring with 4½ minutes left in the first period.

Watson connected on a long shot almost identical to Rousseau's goal. Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin was screened on the play and never moved in an attempt to stop the shot.

Giacomin was nearly knocked out of the game in the first 20 seconds when he collided with Philadelphia's Bill Flett in the goal crease. The veteran Ranger goalie lay flat on the ice for several minutes, but was treated by the trainer and team doctor, then returned to action.

The Rangers outshot the Flyers 36-19 during regulation time, forcing Parent to make several sharp saves to preserve the tie.

Rangers Tie Series 2-2 On Gilbert's 'OT' Goal

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — He wasn't even supposed to be on the ice, but Rod Gilbert scored the overtime goal Sunday that gave the New York Rangers a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia in the fourth game of their National Hockey League semifinal playoff.

"I was sort of turning toward the bench, looking to come off," said Gilbert. "Our shift was over."

Two-thirds of Gilbert's line, Jean Ratelle and Bobby Rousseau, had made it to the bench, replaced by Walt Tkaczuk and Steve Vickers. Gilbert was supposed to be next off, but he never got there. "When I saw the puck go in their end, I stayed on," he said. "I thought, maybe we had a good chance."

It turned out to be the Rangers' best chance. Tkaczuk and Vickers worked the puck in front of Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent. "I went for the net," said Gilbert. "I was hanging there."

So was Flyer defenseman Joe Watson. "He was taking me out of the play," said Gilbert. But Watson couldn't clear Gilbert away from the net. Vickers got the puck across Parent's crease, and Gilbert tapped at it.

"I didn't get a good shot off," said Gilbert, who was sent flying by Watson. "But I got it between his legs." The red light, slow to flash on the Rangers' first goal, went on fast and New York had tied this best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal series at 2-2. Game 5 is scheduled for Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

"It was the most thrilling goal of my life," said Gilbert, who is the highest scorer in Ranger history. "I've had some happy moments, but the meaning of this game was so great for us."

A controversial goal by New York's Bobby Rousseau tied the score with less than two minutes left in the second period.

The Rangers were skating on a power play with four players against three Flyers when Rousseau fired a 50-footer at Parent. The puck hit high under the crossbar, then fell out of the net at Parent's feet.

The Ranger players thrust their sticks into the air, signifying a goal, but the red light behind the net did not go on immediately. When it did flash, Parent argued briefly, but the goal stood and the game was deadlocked 1-1.

Then the teams skated through a scoreless third period, playing cautious hockey in contrast to the wide-open style employed earlier. Referee Lloyd Gilmour called only one minor penalty in those 20 minutes compared to 17 minors and two majors in the game's first 40 minutes.

Philadelphia defenseman Joe Watson opened the scoring with 4½ minutes left in the first period.

Watson connected on a long shot almost identical to Rousseau's goal. Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin was screened on the play and never moved in an attempt to stop the shot.

Giacomin was nearly knocked out of the game in the first 20 seconds when he collided with Philadelphia's Bill Flett in the goal crease. The veteran Ranger goalie lay flat on the ice for several minutes, but was treated by the trainer and team doctor, then returned to action.

The Rangers outshot the Flyers 36-19 during regulation time, forcing Parent to make several sharp saves to preserve the tie.

Boston Smashes Black Hawks, 6-2

BOSTON (UPI) — John Bucyk seems to forget his age these days.

But the Chief, almost 39, never forgets how to score—as he proved twice more Sunday night to Chicago goalie Tony Esposito.

The burly left-winger scored Boston's first two goals in a 6-2 triumph that gave the Bruins a 3-2 lead in their Stanley Cup semifinal series.

Bucyk scored from in close and roared down the ice on a second-period breakaway.

"Bucyk broke it open," said pleased coach Bep Guidolin. "Gee, I never saw him skate that fast."

The second goal, which equaled Chicago's output, was a 20-footer that Bucyk described this way:

"I faked the shot to the top left and put it in the top right. I don't like breakaways really. I'm uptight—I was a little nervous on this one when I broke in, but I saw a good shot."

Phil Esposito, who finally solved the problem of his brother's quick glove by scoring two goals to the stick side, joked about Bucyk's performance.

"That's what he gets paid for; no really, Chief comes through in the clutch—that's clutch."

Esposito set a milestone of his own with the pair of scores. He is now the 11th National Hockey League player to score more than 100 points in playoff competition. He has 101.

The Bruins could wrap up the semifinal series Tuesday night with a win in Chicago, but as the Bruins' players agreed, "We will have to play like we did the past three games."

Again Tuesday night, Boston will be looking to find Bucyk open in his familiar spot to the left of Tony Esposito.

Bucyk, who also had an assist, drew first blood, beating Black Hawks goalie Tony Esposito off the right post at 15:13 of the first period. His goal capped one of the most dazzling stickhandling displays of the series as almost every Bruin on the ice got his stick on the puck before Greg Sheppard fired a pass to Bucyk on the left side of the net.

Bucyk's breakaway goal at 0:47 of the second period opened a five-goal Bruin blitz which put Chicago out for the count. Esposito and Dallas Smith added scores in the next two minutes and 48 seconds to make it 4-0.

Omaha Splits Doubleheader

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Omaha salvaged the second game of an American Association doubleheader 4-2 Sunday after Evansville had won the opener 7-4.

The host Royals won four of the five games in the series.

Randy Hammon came within three outs of pitching the first no-hitter in Rosenblatt Stadium since August of 1972 in the nightcap game. In the seventh, Reggie Sanders beat out an infield single and Bob Adams blasted a home run for the visitors' two runs.

Omaha got three runs in the first inning on two walks, a single by Tom Poquette and a single by Frank Ortenzio.

In the opener, the Triplets sent 10 men to the plate in the first inning and scored four runs on four hits, three walks, an error and a wild pitch.

Omaha counted twice in the first inning on Keith Marshall's triple and Craig's homer, and the Royals got their other two runs in the seventh on a homer by Jose Arcia, a single by Craig and a double by Gary Rahe.

Fred Holdsworth was the winner and Dennis Leonard took the loss.

Derby's Entries Down, One Running Planned

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — With Judger and Cannonade in his barn, a jovial Woody Stephens figured Sunday that he held the strongest hand for next Saturday's 100th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Stephens, who trains Judger, the Blue Grass Stakes winner, for Seth Hancock, and Cannonade, the Stepping Stone Purse winner for John Olin, wasn't counting his chickens before they were hatched, however.

"This is my fifth try at winning the Kentucky Derby," he pointed out. "The best I did was finish second with Never Bend in 1963."

The list of possible starters continued to dwindle and the possibility that the Derby would have to be run in two divisions has evaporated.

Although there still were 23 possible starters at Churchill Downs, only about 20 of them were likely to go to the post in the first of the Triple Crown classics.

Cannonade's stretch-running victory in the Stepping Stone on Saturday, and Judger's come-from-behind triumph in the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last Thursday has a lot to do with it.

Thirteen horses started in the Stepping Stone. In addition to winning Cannonade, only four others now are certain Derby starters—J.R.'s Pet, Destroyer, Sir Tristram and Accipiter.

J.R.'s Pet, the Arkansas Derby winner, was second and came out of the race fit. Destroyer, the Santa Anita Derby winner, was third, finishing dead tired, but pulled up sound.

Sir Tristram finished seventh in his first start in the United States and was scheduled for more schooling in the starting gate.

Accipiter, bumped at the start, tossed jockey Miguel Rivera, then worked his way through the field riderless and sprinted into the lead in the stretch to finish ahead of Cannonade.

Trainer Frank Martin wasn't too upset. "It was as good as a workout, the way he handled himself," said Martin, who also will saddle Rube the Great, winner of a division of the Wood

Memorial, for the Derby. "He suffered a few superficial cuts on a leg but he will run in the Derby and Angel Santiago will ride him."

The status of several others became doubtful and most owners and trainers would welcome a chance to start their horses in the Twin Spires Purse on Saturday rather than the Kentucky Derby "if the purse was worth it."

"The Derby will be worth more than $300,000," pointed out Roger Braugh who owns Bold Clarion. "But second is only worth $25,000. If the Twin Spires were raised from $25,000 to $50,000, it might not be too much of a temptation. But I certainly would do a lot of thinking if it were $75,000."

Such a move still was under consideration by Churchill Downs officials.

Others who start in the Twin Spires probably are Eric's Champ, Pat McGrouder, Crimson Ruler and Silver Hope.

That would leave Agitate, Confederate Yankee, Triple Crown, Flip Sal, Hudson County, Sharp Gary, Destroyer, Sir Tristram, Buck's Bid, Consigliori, Little Current, J.R.'s Pet, Gold and Myrrh and the pair from Venezuela, Lexico and Set 'n' Go as possible challengers to the two entries of Judger and Cannonade, and Rube the Great and Accipiter.

Miller Survives Tourney Pressure

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Allen Miller survived three bogeys Sunday and sank a pressure birdie putt on the 17th hole to capture the $18,000 first prize in the Tallahassee Open Golf Tournament.

Miller's one-over-par 73 on the 7,124-yard Killearn Golf and Country Club course gave him a 72-hole total of 274, 14 under par and a one-stroke victory over veteran Dan Sikes, rookie Eddie Pearce and Joe Inman.

Two strokes off the pace were Jack Ewing, George Johnson, Gil Morgan, Jim Dent and Jim Simons.

The victory was the first for Miller, 25, of Pensacola, Fla., who joined the Professional Golfers Association tour three years ago.

Miller led the tournament from the very start, shooting a 7-under-par 65 Thursday, adding a 69 on Friday and a 67 on Saturday.

"That shot at 17 won the golf tournament for me," he said of a chip shot 20 yards off the green which rolled to within a 1 1/2 feet of the cup. He tapped it in for his birdie.

"It's the biggest shot I've ever hit," he said. "It's the only way I could have won the tournament."

Inman, a teammate with Miller on the winning 1969 Walker Cup team agreed. "He hit a heck of a shot," Inman said. "That shot was the whole ball of wax."

that year were $48,972. He has pocketed $24,500 so far this season.

With wind and pressure bothering the pros, the best round among the leaders Sunday were turned in by George Johnson and Jack Ewing, both of whom had five-under-par 67s to finish at 276 and a five-way tie for fifth place.

Mike Resor, who played the last two days with only his right hand because of a left shoulder injury, had a 42-over-par 114 Sunday after shooting a 123 Saturday.

His 72-hole score was 381, 93 over par. He injured himself horseback riding after Friday's round and decided to play in the tournament to salvage his exemption from qualifying for next week's Byron Nelson Classic at Dallas.

Subpoena To Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — All members of the Dallas Cowboys living in the Dallas area have been subpoenaed to appear in court Tuesday for a hearing regarding the team's suit against the World Football League.

The subpoena directs the 31 Cowboy players to produce "all documents or writing of any kind pertaining to any offers, negotiations or contracts you may have had with the WFL or any of its members, teams or representatives."

"And all documents or writings of any kind pertaining to any remuneration, including but not limited to reimbursement of expenses you have received from the WFL or any of its members, teams, agents or representatives."

The hearing is scheduled at 11 a.m. EDT, before State District Court Judge Charles E. Long.

Last Sunday, the Cowboys obtained a temporary restraining order prohibiting any WFL contact with Cowboy players. The National Football League team also sought specifically to nullify the contracts of running back Calvin Hill and quarterback Craig Morton with WFL teams.

King Falters, Russian Wins

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Seventh-seeded Olga Morozova of Russia capitalized on Billie Jean King's rustiness Sunday to upset Ms. King 7-6, 6-1 and win the $10,000 first prize in this stop on the women's pro tennis circuit.

Mrs. Morozova took an early lead in the first set, but Ms. King tied the set at 4-4. Mrs. Morozova eventually won the set on a tiebreaker.

The Russian victor dominated the second set as Ms. King had trouble placing her shots.

Mrs. Morozova, 27, called this triumph the biggest of her career. Mrs. Morozova is required by her country to turn the prize money over to the Russian Tennis Federation.

She advanced to the final round by upsetting Rosemary Casals Saturday. Ms. King had not played for three weeks before this tournament.

Former Iowa Coach Dies

LARGO, Fla. (UPI) — Funeral services for Dr. Edward "Eddie" Anderson, former head football coach at the University of Iowa and Holy Cross, will be held Monday at St. Jerome's Catholic Church.

Anderson, 73, died Friday at his home in Belleair Beach, Fla.

Anderson's 39-year coaching career included the head job at Holy Cross from 1933 until 1938 when he moved to Iowa where he coached until 1942 and again after World War II from 1946 until 1949.

In 1950, he returned to Holy Cross where he remained until his retirement in 1964.

Anderson was an All-America end and captain of the Notre Dame team in 1921 under Knute Rockne.

He was elected to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame in 1971 and coached all-star teams against the pros in 1940 and 1950. He was a coach at the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco in 1953, 1954, 1955 and 1963.

Prefontaine Sets Marks

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — University of Oregon distance ace Steve Prefontaine shattered two American records in one race Saturday at the University of Oregon's annual Twilight Track and Field Meet.

Prefontaine, running for the Oregon Track Club, dropped his own American record for the six-mile run with a time of 26 minutes 51.7 seconds, then ran the additional 376 yards to erase Frank Shorter's record in the 10,000 meters, running that distance in 27:43.6.

Previous records were 27:09.4 for six miles and 27:51.4 for 10,000 meters.

His six-mile time was second best in the world, 4.8 seconds behind Ron Clark's 1965 standard. A 21st lap time of 69 seconds hurt Prefontaine's chances for the world mark.

"I didn't realize I was that close to a world record. I could have had it. And it will go—maybe the next time out," he said.

Two University of Oregon juniors finished the mile under four minutes. Paul Geis won in 3:58.1 and Mark Feig finished in 3:58.5.

Geis erased Prefontaine's Hayward Field record in the three-mile, winning in 12:55.4.

Smith Keeps Holton Title

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Californian Stan Smith, displaying nearly unerring service, retained his $50,000 Holton Tennis Classic title Sunday by defeating Russia's Alex Metreveli, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

The methodical Smith subdued his opponent three times by love scores in the opening set and four in the final while dominating the smaller, 29-year-old Metreveli.

Metreveli's best showing was in the middle set, a performance during which he scored two service breaks.

Smith, meanwhile, broke his opponent's service twice in the opening set. The second was in the seventh game as the American rolled up 12 straight points.

Smith also won the first three points in the middle set and broke through on Metreveli's service before the Soviet won five straight games in a comeback.

In the third set, Smith held service through seven games and overcame his opponent with a service break in the eighth game.

"It looks as if all I have to do is come here," said Smith, whose victory was his second on the World Championship Tennis Blue Group tour in St. Louis.

The win, Smith's first in 10 weeks, boosted his WCT tour earnings to $48,900 this year. Metreveli has earned $25,285, most of which is headed for the Soviet Tennis Association.

Although there still were 25 possible starters at Churchill Downs, only about 20 of them were likely to go to the post in the first of the Triple Crown classics.

Cannonade's stretch-running victory in the Stepping Stone on Saturday, and Judger's come-from-behind triumph in the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last Thursday has a lot to do with it.

Thirteen horses started in the Stepping Stone. In addition to winning Cannonade, only four others now are certain Derby starters—J.R.'s Pet, Destroyer, Sir Tristram and Accipiter.

J.R.'s Pet, the Arkansas Derby winner, was second and came out of the race fit. Destroyer, the Santa Anita Derby winner, was third, finishing dead tired, but pulled up sound.

Sir Tristram finished seventh in his first start in the United States and was scheduled for more schooling in the starting gate.

Accipiter, bumped at the start, tossed jockey Miguel Rivera, then worked his way through the field riderless and sprinted into the lead in the stretch to finish ahead of Cannonade.

Trainer Frank Martin wasn't too upset. "It was as good as a workout, the way he handled himself," said Martin, who also will saddle Rube the Great, winner of a division of the Wood

Subpoena To Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — All members of the Dallas Cowboys living in the Dallas area have been subpoenaed to appear in court Tuesday for a hearing regarding the team's suit against the World Football League.

The subpoena directs the 31 Cowboy players to produce "all documents or writings of any kind pertaining to any offers, negotiations or contracts you may have had with the WFL or any of its members, teams or representatives."

"And all documents or writings of any kind pertaining to any remuneration, including but not limited to reimbursement of expenses you have received from the WFL or any of its members, teams, agents or representatives."

The hearing is scheduled at 11 a.m., EDT, before State Dist. Court Judge Charles E. Long.

Last Sunday, the Cowboys obtained a temporary restraining order prohibiting any WFL contact with Cowboy players. The National Football League team also sought specifically to nullify the contracts of running back Calvin Hill and quarterback Craig Morton with WFL teams.

Former Iowa Coach Dies

LARGO, Fla. (UPI) — Funeral services for Dr. Edward "Eddie" Anderson, former head football coach at the University of Iowa and Holy Cross, will be held Monday at St. Jerome's Catholic Church.

Anderson, 73, died Friday at his home in Belleair Beach, Fla.

Anderson's 39-year coaching career included the head job at Holy Cross from 1933 until 1938 when he moved to Iowa where he coached until 1942 and again after World War II from 1946 until 1949.

In 1950, he returned to Holy Cross where he remained until his retirement in 1964.

Anderson was an All-America end and captain of the Notre Dame team in 1921 under Knute Rockne. He was elected to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame in 1971 and coached all-star teams against the pros in 1940 and 1950. He was a coach at the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco in 1953, 1954, 1955 and 1963.

Memorial, for the Derby. "He suffered a few superficial cuts on a leg but he will run in the Derby and Angel Santiago will ride him."

The status of several others became doubtful and most owners and trainers would welcome a chance to start their horses in the Twin Spires Purse on Saturday rather than the Kentucky Derby "if the purse was worth it."

"The Derby will be worth more than $300,000," pointed out Roger Braugh who owns Bold Clarion. "But second is only worth $25,000. If the Twin Spires were raised from $25,000 to $50,000, it might not be too much of a temptation. But I cer-

Miller Survives Tourney Pressure

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Allen Miller survived three bogeys Sunday and sank a pressure birdie putt on the 17th hole to capture the $18,000 first prize in the Tallahassee Open Golf Tournament.

Miller's one-over-par 73 on the 7,124-yard Killebrew Golf and Country Club course gave him a 72-hole total of 274, 14 under par and a one-stroke victory over veteran Dan Sikes, rookie Eddie Pearce and Joe Inman.

Two strokes off the pace were Jack Ewing, George Johnson, Gil Morgan, Jim Dent and Jim Simons.

The victory was the first for Miller, 25, of Pensacola, Fla., who joined the Professional Golfers Association tour three years ago.

Miller led the tournament from the very start, shooting a 7-under-par 65 Thursday, adding a 69 on Friday and a 67 on Saturday.

"That shot at 17 won the golf tournament for me," he said of a chip shot 20 yards off the green which rolled to within a 1½ feet of the cup. He tapped it in for his birdie.

"It's the biggest shot I've ever hit," he said. "It's the only way I could have won the tournament."

Inman, a teammate with Miller on the winning 1969 Walker Cup team agreed. "He hit a heck of a shot," Inman said. "That shot was the whole ball of wax."

Miller had won only $6,500 on the tour before Sunday. His best previous finish has been a tie for second at Memphis, Tenn. in 1973 and his total earnings for 1973 and his total earnings for 1973 and his total earnings for 1973

King Falters, Russian Wins

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Seventh-seeded Olga Morozova of Russia capitalized on Billie Jean King's mistakes Sunday to upset Ms. King 7-6, 6-1 and win the $10,000 first prize in this stop on the women's pro tennis circuit.

Mrs. Morozova took an early lead in the first set, but Ms. King tied the set at 4-4. Mrs. Morozova eventually won the set on a tiebreaker.

The Russian victor dominated the second set as Ms. King had trouble placing her shots.

Mrs. Morozova, 27, called this triumph the biggest of her career. Mrs. Morozova is required by her country to turn the prize money over to the Russian Tennis Federation.

She advanced to the final round by upsetting Rosemary Casals Saturday. Ms. King had not played for three weeks before this tournament.

Prefontaine Sets Marks

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — University of Oregon distance ace Steve Prefontaine shattered two American records in one race Saturday at the University of Oregon's annual Twilight Track and Field Meet.

Prefontaine, running for the Oregon Track Club, dropped his own American record for the six-mile run with a time of 26 minutes 51.7 seconds, then ran the additional 376 yards to erase Frank Shorter's record in the 10,000 meters, running that distance in 27:43.6.

Previous records were 27:09.4 for six miles and 27:51.4 for 10,000 meters.

His six-mile time was second best in the world, 4.8 seconds behind Ron Clark's 1965 standard. A 21st lap time of 69 seconds hurt Prefontaine's chances for the world mark.

"I didn't realize I was that close to a world record. I could have had it. And it will go maybe the next time out," he said.

Two University of Oregon juniors finished the mile under four minutes. Paul Geis won in 3:58.1 and Mark Feig finished in 3:58.5.

Geis erased Prefontaine's Hayward Field record in the three-mile, winning in 12:55.4.

Smith Keeps Holton Title

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Californian Stan Smith, displaying nearly unerring service, retained his $50,000 Holton Tennis Classic title Sunday by defeating Russia's Alex Metreveli, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

The methodical Smith subdued his opponent three times by love scores in the opening set and four in the final while dominating the smaller, 29-year-old Metreveli.

Metreveli's best showing was in the middle set, a performance during which he scored two service breaks.

Smith, meanwhile, broke his opponent's service twice in the opening set. The second was in the seventh game as the American rolled up 12 straight points.

Smith also won the first three points in the middle set and broke through on Metreveli's service before the Soviet won five straight games in a comeback.

In the third set, Smith held service through seven games and overcame his opponent with a service break in the eighth game.

"It looks as if I have to do it come here," said Smith, whose victory was his second on the World Championship Tennis Blue Group tour in St. Louis.

The win, Smith's first in 10 weeks, boosted his WCT tour earnings to $48,900 this year. Metreveli has earned $25,285, most of which is headed for the Soviet Tennis Association.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
